Lewis Attack On Garner May Force Vote on Wage-Hour Act

Committee Agrees to Bring Amendments to Floor
SOLONS ANGRY

Rules Group Is Preparing to Submit Three Proposals

Washington—(P)—John L. Lewis' denunciation of Vice President Garner stirred up such a congressional tempest today that some legislators said it had improved chances for revision of the wage-hour law at this session.

Lewis was demanding that congress make no change in the law when he told the house labor committee yesterday that the 70-year old vice president was a "labor-baiting, poker-playing, whisky-drinking old man."

Ignoring the CIO leader's opposition to any wage-hour alterations—a stand which the A. F. of L. joined—the labor committee agreed after a tempestuous closed meeting to try to bring so-called "non-controversial" amendments to the house floor next Monday.

A short time later, the rules committee decided to send to the floor three separate proposals for changing the law and let the chamber take its pick. A tangled parliamentary situation was certain to develop.

President Roosevelt at his press conference today had no comment on Lewis' statement, except to remark that the same gentleman had said some things about him a little while ago and he thought there had been no comment.

Hit New Deal in '37
There was no elaboration on this, but listeners recalled that during the 1937 sit-down strikes Lewis had spoken harshly of the administration's attitude.

Mr. Roosevelt interpreted the sending of three different wage-hour amendatory bills to the house floor as a hopeful step toward adjournment.

Asked for comment on the committee's procedure, the president said only that after you get all kinds of legislation to the floor, you are more apt to get action than if all kinds of legislation remained in committee.

Lewis bluntly accused Garner of responsibility for what he called the "campaign against labor" in the house, and said:

"I am against him in 1939 and I will be against him in 1940 when he seeks the presidency of the United States."

Angered and astounded friends of the Texan rallied to his support in both the senate and house. Several of them quickly predicted Lewis' outburst would help Garner politically.

"Worth Millions Votes"
"It will be worth millions of votes to the vice president if he is a candidate for office in 1940," asserted Senator Burke (D-Neb.) "It should assure his election."

Garner declined to comment on Lewis' attack. When friends wanted to reply on the senate floor, he was reported to have requested them not to do so.

The house gave Garner a tumultuous ovation late yesterday when the Texas delegation formally expressed its "deep resentment and indignation at this unwarranted and unjustified attack."

Legislators seeking a reason for Lewis' sensational utterances recalled widely circulated reports that Garner had attempted to induce President Roosevelt to intervene against the sit-down strikes in 1937 in which CIO unions were prominent.

The action of the house labor and rules committees in quickly passing along wage-hour amendments emphasized the sharp conflict between the two groups. Labor committee men denounced the rules group for "legislative thievery" in agreeing to let the house vote on legislation which the labor committee had not approved.

The boy had been missing for two and a half days. He is shown here as he was hugged by his parents.

Consider Appeal From Reversal of Oil Convictions

Government May Carry
Madison Conspiracy
Case to Supreme Court

Chicago—(P)—The government considered today an appeal to the United States Supreme Court from an appellate court decision reversing its conviction of 17 defendants in the Madison, Wis., oil conspiracy case.

Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general, said in Washington it was "certain" an appeal would be taken. The circuit court of appeals here yesterday reversed and ordered retried the case involving 12 oil companies and 5 individuals.

They were convicted in Madison in 1937 on charges of conspiring to raise and fix gasoline prices in 10 midwestern states, in violation of the anti-trust laws. The appellate court held that the case should have been submitted to the Madison jury on the question of whether there was unreasonable restraint of interstate commerce, instead of on the question of whether there was an anti-trust law violation.

46 Convictions
Originally there were 72 defendants, but 26 were dismissed. The jury convicted 46. Judge Patrick J. Stone of Madison set aside the verdict and freed 11, granted new trials to 18 and sustained the conviction of the 17 involved in yesterday's decision.

They were the Socony-Vacuum Oil company, Inc., Wadhams Oil company, Empire Oil Refining company, Pure Oil company, Shell Petroleum company, Sinclair Refining company, Midcontinent Petroleum corporation, Phillips Petroleum company, Skelly Oil company, Globe Oil and Refining company (Oklahoma), Globe Oil and Refining company (Illinois), Charles E. Arnott and H. T. Ashton of Socony-Vacuum; R. H. McElroy, Jr., of Pure Oil; P. E. Lakin of Shell, and Robert W. McDowell of Midcontinent.

The companies were fined $3,000 each and the individuals $1,000 each.

'Dixie Davis' Is Given Protection

Released From Jail but Is Guarded in Undisclosed Hideout

New York—(P)—J. Richard "Dixie" Davis, one-time "kid mouthpiece" for the Dutch Schultz policy racket, was a "free" man today—guarded carefully in an undisclosed hideout against gangland's vengeance for informers.

Accompanied by four detectives who will go wherever he goes, Davis hustled from the Bronx county jail shortly after 1 a. m., and into a waiting automobile which carried him swiftly away, perhaps to an early rendezvous with his red-haired sweetheart, Hope Dare, Broadway show beauty whom he plans to marry.

Davis, his one-year sentence for his part in the racket conspiracy pared by 170 days spent in the Tombs while he waited his turn to testify against his mates, and by 69 days off for good behavior, must return Monday to Manhattan as a federal grand jury witness.

It was Davis' story that helped convict James J. Hones, Tammany chief, of using his political position to gain official protection for the Schuyler numbers racket. Davis earlier had pleaded guilty.

A campaign to raise money by private subscription to build an artificial swimming pool is about to be sponsored by the Appleton Junior Chamber of Commerce, which has enlisted the help of a group of prominent older Appleton men, it was announced today by Horace L. Davis, Jr., president of the Jaces.

This group of older men, whose names will be announced in a few days, will constitute a board of trustees to take custody of the funds, determine the size, location and cost of the proposed pool and to determine the amount of money that will be sought.

Dale Fox and George Howden have been named co-chairmen of the campaign, and are to be assisted by Harold Stout, Harold Finger, Harvey Sackett and Harry P. Hoefel.

The campaign probably will get underway in about three weeks, Davis said. Every fraternal and civic organization in the city will be invited to participate.

Money raised in the drive is to be supplemented, it is hoped, by a grant from the federal government, for which application already has been made. Trustees will meet soon to determine how much money

Green Bay Woman Gets Life Sentence

Mrs. Lucy Weidner Pleads
Guilty of Murdering
Her Husband

Green Bay—(P)—Mrs. Lucy Weidner, 53, who bludgeoned her husband, Matthew, 53, to death because "he never took me out," pleaded guilty to first degree murder today and was sentenced to life imprisonment by Circuit Judge Henry Grass.

Weidner's body, the head battered by a heavy handle, was found in his bed July 14. Police Inspector Henry J. Bero said Mrs. Weidner confessed the slaying and listed numerous grievances.

The guilty plea was entered by Mrs. Weidner's attorney, Meyer M. Cohen, who told the court he had considered all possible defenses and had come to the conclusion a plea of guilty was inevitable.

Sentence was pronounced before one of the largest courtroom crowds in Green Bay's history. Asked if she had anything to say, Mrs. Weidner replied in a tremulous voice that she was "sorry." Through most of the proceedings she sat with a handkerchief pressed to her face.

Police Lieutenant Otto M. Cronce testified that on July 1, two weeks before the slaying, Mrs. Weidner purchased 30 tablets of poison under an assumed name, saying she wanted to kill rats.

She was identified by the drug-gist who made the sale, Cronce said.

Attorney Cohen, after making his statement relative to the plea, asked that nothing be entered in the record which would impair Mrs. Weidner's chances of executive clemency later.

More than 300 persons, most of them women, crowded the courtroom corridors before doors of the courtroom were opened.

Modesty of Dress Is Urged in Vatican City

Vatican City—(P)—Monsignor Alfonso de Romanis, the pope's vicar in Vatican City, had called on women residents of the papal state in a pastoral circular to set an example in modesty of dress.

Vatican sources interpreted the circular as intended to discourage Roman women from going stockinged and wearing short-sleeved and short-skirted dresses in papal precincts.

Heat Wave Is Broken; Seven Dead in State

Storm, Torrid Wave,
Drownings and Motor
Accidents Take Toll

WIDESPREAD RAINS

Relief Reported Over
Large Part of U. S.;
More Moisture Needed

Milwaukee—(P)—A windstorm, excessive heat, drownings and traffic accidents combined to take seven lives in Wisconsin Thursday. The dead:

Delbert Tschabold, 18, Green county.
Olaf Solbert, 72, Jackson county.
John Janczyk, 41, Milwaukee.
Mrs. Mazie Lasure, 19, Janesville.
Robert Guerin, 14, Milwaukee.
Sylvester Spencer, 25, Chicago.
Peter Molitor, 9, Milwaukee.

Tschabold was crushed to death by heavy beams when the barn on his father's farm was blown down late Thursday. The farmer, Emil, and the son were conducting the chores when the storm struck.

The father was able to work his way out of the wrecked barn, and was treated for minor chest injuries. All the livestock escaped. No damage was reported at neighboring Green county farms.

Solbert, a Northfield farmer, was overcome by the heat, dying in the field where he had been cutting grain. His widow survives.

Janczyk, a crane operator, was overcome while at work in Milwaukee and died in a hospital a short time later.

Woman Drowns
Mrs. Lasure drowned while swimming with a party of eight young Janesville people. A fire department rescue squad was unable to revive her.

The Guerin boy drowned at Waukesha beach when he fell from the end of a pier into 10 feet of water. He could not swim. He was one of 60 altar boys of St. Rose's Catholic church of Milwaukee, on a day's outing. The body was recovered.

Spencer, driver for a Chicago dairy, was killed instantly near Waukesha on Highway 67 when the

Typewriter Firms Face U. S. Charges

Four Concerns Under Presidents Under Indictment

Washington—(P)—The department of justice announced today a federal grand jury in New York indicted four major typewriter manufacturing companies and their presidents on charges of conspiracy to fix prices and operate a monopoly.

The concerns and their presidents named in the indictment, the department said, were:

Underwood, Elliott Fisher company, and Philip D. Wagoner; Remington-Rand, Inc., and James H. Rand, Jr.; Royal Typewriter company, Inc., and Edmund C. Faustmann; and L. C. Smith and Corona Typewriter, Inc., and Hurlbut W. Smith.

The indictment, the department said, charged the defendants with "conspiring to control the production, distribution and sale of typewriters and to eliminate competition among themselves by agreeing upon and maintaining a uniform scale of discounts."

Devroy Facing Two Counts of Murder

Green Bay—(P)—Joseph Devroy, who told the police he killed his wife and mother-in-law July 25, was charged with two counts of first degree murder in warrants issued yesterday by the district attorney's office.

Devroy is a patient in St. Vincent hospital. He shot himself in the chest when the police trapped him on a farm several hours after his wife and Mrs. Erny Kaiser were shot to death at the latter's Green Bay home.

Witness in Waukesha Murder Trial Denies He Ever Sought Company of Defendant's Wife

Waukesha—(P)—Frank Midberry, 60, of Elkhorn, testified in the first degree murder trial of Edward E. Abel today he never sought the company of Abel's estranged wife, as the defendant charged.

Abel, 49, on trial for the hatchet slaying of Mrs. Olive LeRoy, 76, testified yesterday he "should have killed Frank Midberry," the man he charged was encouraging his wife to divorce him. He was "silly," he said, "who was a guest of Mrs. Abel."

Midberry told the court he had visited the Abels several times and had always been invited to return. He said Abel assured him he was always welcome. Midberry denied Abel's statement that the defendant ejected him bodily from their house and forbade him to return.

Midberry, a rebuttal witness for the state, took the stand after the defense rested its case.

He also denied offering $100 to Mrs. Le Roy to persuade Mrs. Abel

Senate Quits During Fight Over Tax Bill

Adjourns Until Tuesday
To Avert Reconsideration of Amendment

HEATED ARGUMENT

Higher Liquor and Wine
Taxes are Retained
In Measure

Madison—(P)—Faced with a deadlock over the administration's bill, members of the state senate quit work five minutes after they convened today and went home until Tuesday.

Republican Floorleader Maurice Coakley, Beloit, brought about the adjournment to prevent reconsideration of an amendment which would wipe out the $3,250,000 increase in liquor and wine taxes.

In a state of confusion the senate voted late yesterday to adopt the amendment, then changed its mind and rejected it. By today's parliamentary move for adjournment before a second reconsideration motion could be entered, administration leaders were assured the liquor tax increase would remain in the bill. Under the rules it cannot be voted upon again.

The victory, however, was regarded only as a temporary one which gave no indication of what the senate ultimately will do about the revenue program for the next biennium.

Faces Bitter Attack
The liquor tax was but one item in the $16,000,000 measure passed by the assembly. The assault upon it came from members of all three parties. When the senate began debate yesterday there were signs the bill might be whittled away piece by piece and that administration amendments to raise an additional $9,000,000 would not fare well.

The senate began by eliminating the $25 tax on coin operated devices and rejecting the Heil endorsed tax of 4 cents a gallon on lubricating oil. About $2,250,000 in revenue thus was lost.

Even the cigaret tax, which alone would account for $6,000,000, was threatened temporarily, but an amendment to reject it finally was defeated.

By adjourning over the weekend, Republican leaders will have a few more days to take stock of the situation and size up the chances of rallying enough senate votes to back up the administration program.

They frankly admitted the revolt against the miscellaneous tax bill was paving the way toward a general sales tax, which Republican Finance Chairman Otto Mueller, Wausau, said would be considered only as a last resort.

Sales Tax Bill
Senator Kenneth S. White (R) River Falls, has pending a substitute for a 3 per cent sales tax which would solve Governor Heil's budget problem and return $16,000,000 annually to local governments.

Yesterday's session was marked not only by a split among Republicans and Democrats, but among Progressives as well.

Senator Michael Kresky (P) Green Bay, came to the support of administration leaders when it appeared the bill might be emasculated.

Michigan Minister Facing Murder Trial

Flint, Mich.—(P)—The Rev. James Wilson Lane was ordered held today for trial in circuit court on a murder charge in the fatal shooting of his wife last July 7.

Lane, who divided his time between working in an automobile plant and preaching in a church at Frankenmuth, maintained during his municipal court examination that his wife was shot accidentally while he was trying to remove a jammed Sherwood 41 house-keeper for the Lanes, testified she had illicit relations with the accused man, but denied that she and Lane had entered into an agreement to marry in the event of Mrs. Lane's death.

Lane is 61 years old, as was his wife, to whom he had been married 44 years.

Sabien said the accident probably happened last night or early this morning, because the section gang has covered that portion of the track each day this week. The body was brought into the city this afternoon and attempts will be made to identify it.

Seeking to Enforce Labor Board's Order

Milwaukee—(P)—The state attorney general's office has petitioned the Milwaukee circuit court for an order enforcing the Wisconsin employment relations board's interlocutory decree against the striking CIO local union at the Allen-Bradley company.

The petition alleged that the local, of the United Electrical Road and Machine Workers' union, had failed to comply with the decree, which prohibited mass picketing around the Allen-Bradley plant, limited picket lines to 15 persons, and prohibited intimidation of non-strikers.

The decree was issued July 13. The court action automatically sets the hearing date for Aug. 7. The action was the first brought by the new state board since it was set up under the recently enacted "employment peace" law.

Senate Wipes Out Half Billion Fund For Road Purposes

Roosevelt Favors Aims of
Hatch Bill but Says Broad
Language Creates Problem

Washington—(P)—President Roosevelt declared himself today to be absolutely in favor of the objectives of the Hatch bill to prohibit "pernicious" political activities.

He added at a press conference, however, that there was a real problem involved in the measure, which is at the White House awaiting presidential action. That problem, the president said, is: What can people legitimately do under very, very broad language?

He said that, for instance, it might be interpreted to forbid a person to attend a political rally or voluntarily contribute to the campaign expenses of a friend.

Mr. Roosevelt said he would take with him on a weekend fishing cruise a lot of documentary evidence on the bill.

He has not had a report on it yet from Attorney General Murphy, he said.

Asked what phases of the legislation he had talked over yesterday with Senator Hatch (D-N. M.), author of the bill, the president replied that they had considered a great many phases.

Vague Language
He described as most interesting the language on what a government employee can do and can't do and said the language was very vague.

There is a problem, too, he said, of who would enforce the bill and another problem of what would be done with state and other government employees who are not federal workers.

When a reporter remarked that his statement appeared to be somewhat discouraging toward the bill, Mr. Roosevelt said he would not put it that way.

The measure, he emphasized, was merely in the study stage.

To a query about whether he might return the bill to congress for clarification, the chief executive asserted that his study had not yet progressed to that point.

Hatch said today that "my job won't be completed" until similar restrictions are applied to state employees who receive all or part of their salaries from the federal government.

The latter group contains many road and unemployment insurance compensation employees.

Hatch said after his White House conference that he "never had believed" the president would veto the measure.

Mangled Body Is Found Near Tracks

Unidentified Man Apparently Killed Under Wheels of Train

The mangled body of an unidentified man was found near the Chicago and North Western railway tracks about 50 yards east of the intersection of Randall and Charlotte streets about 1:30 this afternoon.

The body, lying in grass and brush near the tracks, was discovered by Arnold Sabien, 903 E. Brewster street, a section foreman for the railroad company.

Undersheriff Fred Frank who was called to the scene said the man probably had fallen off a train or been struck while walking. The victim's legs were cut off and the remainder of the body cut and bruised.

Sabien said the accident probably happened last night or early this morning, because the section gang has covered that portion of the track each day this week. The body was brought into the city this afternoon and attempts will be made to identify it.

MacKenzie said he had asked Tic to buy a case of beer at Shawano for a former commissioner who, he said, paid for it, and there was nothing illegal about it.

During the hearing, Tic sat beside MacKenzie and after a brief, sharp exchange the committee decided to hear them separately.

SURGEON DIES

Dr. William J. Mayo (above), founder with his father and brother of the famous Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn., died there early today. He had submitted May 22 to an operation for a serious stomach condition.

Dr. William Mayo, Famous Surgeon, Dies at Rochester

Succumbs to Stomach Ailment; Submitted to Operation May 22

Rochester, Minn.—(P)—White-haired Dr. William J. Mayo, son of a country doctor who trained him to become one of medical history's greatest surgeons, died at 4 o'clock this morning from an ailment upon the treatment of which he gained much of his fame. He was 78 years old June 29.

"Dr. Will" underwent an operation for a serious stomach condition May 22 at famed Mayo clinic here, founded by his father, his late brother, Dr. Charles H. Mayo, and himself more than half a century ago.

He rallied, even resuming his visits to his office and went on short automobile trips but by July he had begun to "decline," in the words of attending physicians.

His death occurred within a short space of a few months the last of as famous a trio as the medical world has known. Last March 31, Sister Mary Joseph, who stood across an operating table from "Dr. Will" for a quarter of a century and was called by him "easily the first" of all his "splendid assistants," died here.

On May 27, "Dr. Charlie," died in Chicago from pneumonia even while "Dr. Will" apparently was recuperating from his operation.

"Dr. Will" began feeling poorly last spring and cut short a vacation

MacKenzie Denies Charges by Former Warden at Shawano

Madison—(P)—Denial of all charges against him by Arthur C. MacKenzie, former Shawano warden, was made by Conservation Director H. W. MacKenzie, testifying yesterday before the assembly committee investigating conservation commission activities.

A dozen sportsmen, game and bird breeders also testified the commission had given them all the cooperation they desired.

The charged MacKenzie ordered him to kill a deer for a friend; that he gave orders during the prohibition era to have him transport beer for parties of friends; and that warden had been asked to help pay for two legislators' rites.

Denying the allegations, MacKenzie said:

"I never ordered any of the commission personnel to do any illegal act or file any false expense account. Tic never hauled any liquor for me. I have nothing personal against him. I think he is very good-hearted and would do anything for you, but he had other failings."

MacKenzie said Tic was discharged from the department in October, 1935, for failing to enforce departmental regulations.

MacKenzie said he had asked Tic to buy a case of beer at Shawano for a former commissioner who, he said, paid for it, and there was nothing illegal about it.

During the hearing, Tic sat beside MacKenzie and after a brief, sharp exchange the committee decided to hear them separately.

Reverses Self in Stunning Blow to New Deal

HOUSE CAUCUS

Senate Writes in Provision for Farm
Refinancing

Washington—(P)—In a sudden reversal, the senate voted today to slash $500,000,000 for highway improvement from the administration's $2,490,000,000 lending program.

The senate vote was taken only minutes after Representative Gavanigan of New York announced he would ask a caucus of house Democrats tonight to express their "loyalty and devotion" to President Roosevelt at the same time they consider pledging support of the administration's two remaining pieces of major legislation.

The senate's vote against retaining the highway fund was 42 to 38. This stunning blow to the administration was forced by a coalition of Democrats and Republicans on the motion of Senator Byrd (D-Va.).

The action reversed a 40 to 38 senate vote yesterday against the reduction.

Just before voting on the Byrd amendment itself the senate balloted 52 to 39 to reconsider yesterday's decision.

The senate also wrote into the $2,490,000,000 lending bill a provision for government refinancing of farm mortgages.

The amendment was sponsored by Senators Wheeler (D-Mont.) and LaFollette (P-Wis.) who told the chamber it would enable many hard-pressed farmers to retain their homes and reduce their taxes, principal and interest payments.

Interest rates would be limited to 3 per cent, and loans would be made under terms specified under the Bankhead-Jones farm tenancy act.

Any available funds of the federal farm mortgage corporation would be used for the purpose.

Washington—(P)—After administration senators narrowly defeated three restrictive amendments to the $2,490,000,000 lending bill, opponents countered today with a final drive to consign it to a committee pigeonhole.

Republicans and dissenting Democrats claimed enough votes to return the measure to the senate banking committee "for further study," thereby killing it for this session, but supporters confidently predicted passage before midnight.

While this showdown was approaching in the senate, an extraordinary test of strength was shaping up within Democratic house ranks. Party members will hold a caucus tonight at which advocates of the lending bill will try to bind the entire group to support it.

The administration gained a preliminary victory for part of the lending program when the house rules committee finally sent to the floor for immediate debate the bill to double the $800,000,000 borrowing power of the United States Housing Authority.

Road Fund Slays

Appleton Wants Wolf Reservoir, Mayor Declares

Goodland Says Water Supply Here Will be Helped by Proposed Dam

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—The assembly committee on state affairs today weighed the testimony of the state conservation employees against that of almost everybody else interested in the project that a dam across the Wolf river in its upper reaches for the purpose of strengthening the water flow of the Wolf and Fox rivers will be detrimental to wild life in the upper Wolf river area.

Two representatives of the state conservation department stood alone yesterday in opposing the reservoir which was supported by Wolf river fishermen, Langlade county officials and citizens, Fox river valley municipal officials, and riparian property owners.

Claims that use of a reservoir to stabilize the Fox river will aid Fox river valley manufacturing plants, water utilities, and electric generating utilities were undisputed. Only disagreement was on the effect of such a river dam on the fish life of the upper Wolf.

The Wolf River Reservoir company proposes to build a reservoir on the Wolf near Lily in Langlade county which will hold 4,000,000 cubic feet of water, gathered in spring, for release during the drought seasons of summer. Released to Lake Winnebago, the water would increase the level and the flow of the Fox river in summer.

A bill to charter the company, under the supervision of the public service commission, to do the job with the capital supplied by water power users who will become stockholders in the concern has already passed the senate by a vote of 19 to 9. The assembly committee held its second hearing on the question yesterday.

No Official Stand
Fred G. Wilson, representative of the conservation department, admitted under questioning by Harry E. Brooks, secretary of the reservoir company, that the state conservation commission has never taken an official stand for or against the project. He explained that he was sent to appear against it by "Director H. W. McKenzie, who represents the conservation department."

He argued that the Leeman site for a Wolf River dam, near the Outagamie-Shawano county line and below the Indian reservation, would be as feasible as the Lily site and less detrimental to the "last remaining natural resource which Wisconsin has, and which the people have a right to preserve."

He said that the Leeman dam site might be more expensive for the company and the promoters of the reservoir project, but cheaper for the citizens of the state. He also suggested reconsideration of a diversion of water from the Wisconsin to the Fox at Portage to stabilize the Fox River water level which industries are seeking.

B. E. Webster, fisheries chief for the department, argued that many fish are being killed by similar reservoirs in operation on other rivers in Wisconsin.

Brooks, heading the numerous proponents of the bill, said that the reservoir is "for conservation purposes, for the conservation of water, fish, ducks and other game." He said freshening of the Wolf and Fox rivers through means of the dam would help every community along both rivers, from Lily through Shawano and Waupaca counties to Lake Winnebago, and from Lake Winnebago to Green Bay.

He argued that many identical reservoirs have been built on the Wisconsin river, with satisfactory results.

Replies to Catlin
Replying to criticism of the project expressed last week by Conservation Commissioner Mark Catlin Sr. of Appleton, who held that the Fox River has enough water to allow local dam gates to be opened for a large part of the year, Brooks quoted U. S. government reports showing, he said, that there is a zero flow of water in the lower Fox during many years for long periods of time. Brooks said that there was not enough water in the Wolf river last Sunday for an exhibition on the Indian reservation to float a canoe across Keshena Falls.

Moreover, the construction of the reservoir would provide an annual income of $5,000 or more in utility taxes, he said.

Weekworth, superintendent of the Kaukauna municipal electric utility, said that the "water in the Fox river is very poor. It is not now suitable for paper making. The mills have spent thousands of dollars to drill deep wells to get water for fine papers." He added that some mills had left his area because of the unsatisfactory water conditions, and that the algae in the water this summer are so numerous that felts in the paper machines are rotting, resulting in heavy losses to the manufacturers.

CAPITAL STIRRED BY LEWIS ATTACK ON GARNER

Official Washington was thrown into an uproar by John L. Lewis (left), head of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, when he said, while testifying before the House labor committee, that he thought Vice President Garner is a "labor-baiting, poker-playing, whisky-drinking, evil old man." At right is Rep. Bruce Barton. The committee was left speechless by the attack. The Texas delegation in the house termed the statement "unwarranted and unjustified."

Phillip Vogt, former Appleton alderman, asserted that "we are confronted with a positively burning need."

Appleton Wants It
Mayor John Goodland, Jr. of Appleton, apparently referring to Catlin's opposition at the hearing last week, said:

"I don't want anybody from Appleton to tell you that the citizens of Appleton don't want river control. We have lost much because of unstable water conditions. This is the beginning of a system that will give us a steady flow."

"The cities from Green Bay to Fond du Lac have spent $5,000,000 to build sewage plants to clean up the river. I have seen thousands and thousands of dead fish in the water. We had to send men out to take them up, the stench was so bad," the mayor testified. The Fox river valley is a very big part of the state of Wisconsin, and the people there want this," Goodland informed the legislators.

T. E. Orison, Appleton engineer, testified on the low water level of the Fox at frequent intervals during the summer months, and predicted that the month of August this year will see particularly acute conditions. He said that the level of Lake Winnebago is now lowering at the rate of half an inch a day. He asserted that similar attempts at water control by the Wisconsin Valley Improvement company have been "very successful" and that "we have to make a start now."

Needed at Kaukauna
Mayor Lewis F. Nelson of Kaukauna declared that his city and townfolk are "vitaly interested and affected by" the Fox river. "We have a dollars and cents interest," he said, explaining that improvement of the Fox river water flow may eliminate the necessity of buying annually $12,000 worth of steam power for the municipal electric generating plant, and a potential $20,000 worth when the plant begins operating.

"I am just as conservation-minded as Mr. Catlin, but I can't see that this is anything but a good thing." He testified that the Fox at Kaukauna is now dry and stagnant, and repugnant to local residents.

L. F. Warrick of the state board of health, asked to appear by W. F. Thiele of the Consolidated Water Power and Paper company which operates the Interlake Mill at Appleton, said that the state agencies concerned with health and water pollution are eager to improve the Fox river. Increasing the low summer flow of the river by means of releasing stored waters on the upper Wolf, he said, will improve the sanitary condition of the river.

When Wilson demanded of Warrick whether "the water flow of the Fox will not be helped more by the Leeman dam," Warrick replied that "I can't answer that."

Weekworth told Wilson and the legislators that the Leeman site would be too expensive to be feasible, that its cost would total $1,000,000 at least because of the value of the farm lands which would have to be taken for floodage purposes.

Deny Fish Killing
The Wolf River Conservation club denied conservation department allegations that the dam would kill fish, argued that the artificial lake would be a natural breeding ground for pike, muskellunge, and ducks.

Oscar Alger and Eathan Brewster, representing they said, 1,500 Kaukauna labor union members, explained that union labor is interested in and backing the reservoir plan

City Hall Furniture Taken to Manitowoc For Finishing Work
Offices in Appleton's city hall yesterday took on a definitely disorderly appearance when desks, filing cabinets and chairs were taken to Manitowoc by the Invinible Metal Furniture company for re-finishing.

The furniture will be refinished in a brown color to match the new furniture purchased for the new city hall. It will be moved directly into the new building.

Temporary files include boxes and paper cartons which will have to serve until the offices are moved into the new building. Several old wooden desks replaced the regular desks temporarily.

Program Rounded Out for Seymour Fair; F. F. A. Plan To Pick Outstanding Farmer

Seymour—The fifty-third annual Seymour fair will open Thursday, Aug. 17, and continue for four days. Thursday will be entry day in all the departments. Entries will be accepted until 6 o'clock Tuesday evening before the fair, and all entries must be on the grounds on Thursday.

The free attractions for Friday will be a snappy two-hour horse pulling contest, scheduled to begin at 10 o'clock in the morning. In the afternoon and evening "Flash" Williams and his 15 dare-devils will be shown in "thrill day" at the fair grounds. Williams himself is slated as the foremost spectacular driver and stunt man. Picture producers use him in large productions requiring unusual nerve and daring ingenuity, plus the skill to escape death hazards. He's been seen in the movies. His assistants do the death-drag, leaping with his car through a burning building and demolishing six automobiles in their smashing stunts.

On Saturday eight free acts will be given with three fast harness races and the great night show, Ernie Young's revue with ten acts all before the grandstand.

At 10 o'clock Sunday morning the program will open with Clintonville and Seymour baseball teams of the Northern State league, clashing in one of the most interesting games of the season. In the afternoon there will be free acts with an entire change of program in the harness races and in the evening the big night show.

The Seymour High school band of 70 members under the direction of Principal E. T. Hawkins will entertain each afternoon and evening and the added musical attraction of the Revue orchestra in the evening.

F. F. A. Plan Projects
The Seymour chapter of the Future Farmers of America made their plans for the showing of projects at the Seymour fair at a meeting of the organization. The boys plan to exhibit more than sixty head of livestock and 20 specimens of crops, set up a display booth in cooperation with the Shiocton and Kaukauna chapters, and take part in the judging and demonstration team contests.

Several of the outstanding livestock and crop projects and the winners of the demonstration and judging contests will be sent to Milwaukee to compete at the state fair.

An outstanding farmer in this community will be selected by the F. F. A. boys to represent them at the state fair where he will be given official recognition and a certificate of merit by the state department for his help and encouragement to the agriculture boys in this community. This farmer will be selected in the near future.

Principal E. T. Hawkins was the speaker at the meeting of the Kiwanis club Tuesday evening. He gave a report on his trip to the international convention at Boston in June and an account of his visit to the New York fair. The program was in charge of the interclub relations committee of which John Bunkelman is chairman.

The Ladies Aid society of the Methodist church will meet Tuesday afternoon at the church. Circle No. 1 will serve the supper at 5:30.

Dr. William Mayo Dies at Rochester

with his family in Tucson, Ariz., to return here. It was on a similar return trip a few weeks later that "Dr. Charlie" was stricken with pneumonia.

An operation, such as "Dr. Will" had performed hundreds of times was decided upon, with Dr. William Walters, husband of Dr. Walter, Phoebe, performing it.

Three weeks later he left the hospital and "complete recovery" was predicted by the clinic. He was still bedridden when his brother was buried and was unable to attend the services, a circumstance that might have contributed to his decline because of the great affection between the two men.

Besides his widow, Hattie Mayo, to whom he was married 55 years, and his daughter, Phoebe, another daughter, Carrie, wife of Dr. Donald Balfour, also of Rochester, survives.

Arabian Shiek Will be World's Fair Visitor

New York —(P)— An Arabian shiek, complete with turban, beard, flowing robes and gold-plated sword, arrived today on the Italian liner Conte di Savoia.

He was Mohamed Bin Isa Al Khalifah, of the Bahrain Islands ("The Isles of Pearls") in the Persian gulf. He came to see the New York World's fair and American jewel centers.

The dark-skinned shiek, who is senior counselor at the court of his brother, Shaikh Sir Hamad, attracted considerable attention as he strode down the gangplank in his gold-spangled white robes. In addition to a huge sword, he wore two jewel-encrusted dirks in his belt.

Mrs. McNutt Having Trouble Finding Home
Washington—(P)— Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, house hunting for a "quiet little haven," said today she discovered that some capital rental agents consider anything with five bedrooms, a ballroom and only one dining room "too small" for an official family.

The wife of the new federal security administrator explained she had a hard time convincing them that two persons could get along nicely in a small apartment with no more than two bedrooms. Louise, the McNutt's 18-year-old daughter, will enter Indiana university in September, and Mrs. McNutt will not join her husband here until that time.

Hoeffel Answers Aldermen's Suit To Regain Wages

Defendants Ask Court to Uphold Legality of People's Referendum

An answer to the suit of Appleton's 18 aldermen to establish the legality of the referendum setting their wages at $250 per year was filed today by Harry P. Hoeffel, city attorney, and signed by Carl J. Becker, city clerk and comptroller, and Joseph A. Kox, city treasurer.

The comptroller and treasurer, named defendants in the action along with the city of Appleton, will ask the court to uphold the legality of the referendum, which was adopted by voters by a 3 to 1 majority in the April election.

The dispute arose when the new council, which seated and aldermen ignored their pay checks on the basis of the reduced rate Appleton aldermen previously had been receiving $500 per year. Checks, made out on the $250 per year basis, have been untouched since April 18.

The answer drafted by Hoeffel admits all the points except one of the complaint which, Hoeffel said, merely is the chronological record of various moves made during the controversy and has no bearing on the legality of the referendum.

The expected point is one in which the plaintiffs claim that "the city clerk on April 8 caused to be published in the Appleton Post-Crescent a copy of the purported ordinance but failed or neglected to publish the ordinance in one or more other daily or weekly newspapers of general circulation in the city."

The defendants contend that to their information and belief the Appleton Post-Crescent is the only newspaper of general circulation in the city. Hoeffel also pointed out that before the referendum demanding the cut in aldermanic salaries was submitted to the people, there were numerous news stories in the Post-Crescent dealing with the subject and that the dispute appeared in the record of the city council's minutes which also were published.

The defendants further maintain that since the ordinance was adopted by voters, 5,960 to 2,261, "the will of the electors was clearly expressed and ascertained and must be given effect notwithstanding an informality of procedure or failure to comply with all the requirements of the statutes."

Plaintiffs in the action are Appleton's 18 aldermen, represented by the firm of Benton, Boeser, Becker and Parnell, who claim that each alderman is entitled to $500 per year. The plaintiffs also ask payment of the costs of the action and "such other and further relief and may be found just and proper."

Notice of the suit was filed in city hall July 10. The city clerk and the treasurer were named defendants and were ordered to appear in municipal court within 20 days to contest the action. The deadline is Monday.

Smoke in His Eyes Lands Man in Court

Chicago (AP)—John Zagar got smoke in his eyes when he sat down to eat lunch. Mrs. John Hamburg Jr., 25, seated next to Zagar was one of several women smoking cigarettes. He asked her to "douse the weed," and she stared a cool, definite negative.

Zagar snatched the bag from her lips. A policeman arrived during the ensuing commotion. Now Zagar must answer Mrs. Hamburg's complaint of disorderly conduct in court where smoking is not permitted.

Heat Wave Ends Over Major Part Of United States

big tank truck he was driving left the road on a turn near Eagle, went into a ditch and struck a tree.

The motorist was killed when, Milwaukee police said, he ran across an intersection into the path of a truck.

Widespread Rainfall

Widespread rains nourished desiccated fields and cooled off the nation today.

Areas in Pennsylvania and New England which have been suffering from drought were soaked, but in most places the relief was only temporary and the benefit limited. Crops needed more moisture than the forecasters could see in prospect.

In most of Pennsylvania's sun-baked zone 27 dry days came to an end. Drenching rains fell yesterday, with accompanying storm and flood damage inflicted in many parts of the state. Farm experts said more rain was needed to restore the grain and vegetable crops, and that many crops already were lost.

Update New York, blistered by one of the severest droughts in its history, viewed clearing skies joyously, for in them they visualized the further destruction of crops and pastures. Albany had 3.68 inches of rain in a 24-hour period, but heavier and more general falls were needed. Forest fires in the region were either quenched or brought under control.

Heat in Northwest

Elsewhere in the northeast official opinion considered that the drought was pretty thoroughly lifted.

The Pacific northwest was less fortunate. Its record-breaking heat wave persisted with little if any hope of immediate relief. Two deaths in Washington were attributed to the hot weather. More than 4,000 acres of wheat have been destroyed by fires in Washington in two days. Oregon fought scattered forest fires. At Lewiston, Idaho, yesterday the mercury reached 117. Streets in Seattle and Yakima, Wash., baked.

Heat and humidity had much of the south in their grip, too. Shreveport, La., reported a high temperature of 99 degrees. Here and there the tropic distress was relieved by showers, which were expected to continue over the weekend.

Tornado in Kansas

A mild tornado wrecked six of ten unoccupied tourist cabins at Emporia, Kan., Mrs. B. A. Mickey, wife of the proprietor, who was standing 75 yards away, said she saw some of the cabins blown 40 feet but didn't even feel a breeze, herself. Rain swept along with the wind.

Michigan's department of conservation warned vacationers to exercise extreme care lest major forest fires be touched off with disastrous results. Such blazes already have blighted 43,995 acres, ten times more than the number for the same period last year.

Minnesota reported one death from heat before rain came. Iowa enjoyed new comfort after temperatures of 102 at Cedar Rapids, Ames and Eldora yesterday.

J. R. Lloyd, weather bureau forecaster in Chicago, said showers had been general over the middle-west and Mississippi valley, but that skies would clear by night. Cool weather tonight and a fair and warm weekend were in store for the north central states.

REUNITED AFTER FOUR YEARS

Happy was the reunion in New York when Edmund Ruzanski, 45, Detroit tire plant worker, rushed up the gangplank of the liner Champlain and embraced his pretty Russian wife, Tamara, 25, from whom he had been separated four years. They fell in love while Ruzanski was working in Russia, but soon after their marriage the Reds told Edmund to go back home. "I don't know why," he said.

Believe U. S. Denouncement Of Jap Treaty Strengthens Britain's Hand in Europe

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

New York (AP)—Sharp foreign reaction to Washington's move in denouncing the 1911 American-Japanese treaty—thereby making an embargo against Japan possible after six months—indicates that this unexpected diplomatic development bids fair to have a far-reaching, if indirect, effect on both the European and the Far Eastern crises.

England, uncomfortably involved on both these widely-separated fronts, has welcomed the diversion. Some observers feel that if America's stand serves as a "go slow" signal to Japan in regard to trespass on United States prerogatives, a corollary will be easement of the pressure on the British in their battle with the Nipponese in China.

The reaction in Tokyo and Berlin has been significant. Japanese officials, having in mind the possibility of an embargo against them in due season, declared the American act unfriendly.

"Highly Political"

Nazi Germany attributed a "highly political motive" to the treaty.

Chances Slim for New Pact With Japan; China Elated Over Washington's Action

Washington (AP)—The possibility of a new commercial treaty between the United States and Japan to replace the 1911 pact terminated by Secretary Hull diminished today as administration officials moved to strengthen their firm stand against the Tokyo government.

There were these developments:

1. Chairman Pittman (D-Nev.) of the senate foreign relations committee interpreted Hull's action as a warning to Japanese that the United States did not intend to retreat from its policy of maintaining American rights in the Orient.
2. Pittman served notice the senate would be asked to act on his resolution banning shipment of war supplies to Japan as soon as congress meets in January.
3. The treasury studied the possible application of countervailing duties against Japanese imports into this country on the ground they were being subsidized.

Won't Stop Supplies

Hull's note giving the required six months' notice to end the treaty Jan. 26 will not prevent shipment of supplies to Japan unless congress enacts such legislation. Officials explained in cases where countries do not have commercial treaties in effect, ordinary business dealings were carried on under international law.

Hull and his Far Eastern advisers began what may prove a long scrutiny to determine whether termination of the treaty was to bring such a change in Japan's attitude toward China and foreign interests there that an embargo might not be necessary.

Senator Pittman said in an interview he believed the treaty abrogation should set at rest any conjecture the United States intended to follow the lead of Great Britain in the Far East.

That country recently agreed to recognize Japan's "special requirements" in China.

Picnic for City Employees Will be Held on Saturday

Appleton officials and employees will gather at Stroebe's Island Saturday for the annual employees' picnic and softball game.

Lawrence Reinker, chairman of the committee, promises a real outing with plenty of fun and games for everyone. A picnic lunch will be served on the grounds.

The softball game, always the feature of the day, should be better than ever this year for the officials and the street department have had more than the usual amount of practice. Teams will be selected at the picnic.

Business Boost Shown in Report Merchants Ask for More Credit Information During 6 Months

An increase in reports issued by the Appleton Credit Exchange, indicating a heavier volume of business, was shown during the first six months of 1939, Kenneth Corbett, Chamber of Commerce secretary, said today.

The increase also indicates that merchants may be doing a larger credit business and are more careful in checking new accounts than in other years, Corbett said.

During the last six months, 6,286 credit reports were given compared to 5,449 during the first six months of 1938 and 4,854 during the first six months of 1937. The number of reports issued this year also exceeds the number given out during the last six months of 1938, when 5,989 reports were made and during the last six months of 1937 when 4,904 reports were issued.

Working in the department with Corbett are Florence Schiedermayr, Helen Steinhoff and Mildred Bender.

Union's Move to Gain Bargaining Control Is Lost

Manawa Teamsters Lack Support Among Firm's Employees

The state employment relations board announced today that the Manawa local of the American Federation of Labor Teamsters union had received no support among the employees of the A. Sturm and Sons company in an election to determine a collective bargaining agency. The teamsters' union, alone on the ballot, was opposed by all 28 voters.

A hearing on the petition of the Lakeview Independent union to determine bargaining agents for the Lakeview plant of the Kimberly-Clark corporation was set for Aug. 4 at Neenah, the board said. The first authorization for an employer to enter into an all-union agreement with a labor organization was announced last yesterday by the relations board.

Favored Closed Shop

A referendum recently was conducted by the board among employees of the Eau Claire Transportation company and it found that three-fourths of the employees, as requested by the Employment Peace act, favored a closed shop contract.

The employees are members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (A.F.L.), the union having asked the referendum. Of 30 ballots, 24 favored an all-union agreement and six opposed.

The Independent Textile Workers union of Oshkosh was certified as exclusive bargaining representative today for employees of the Waite Carpet company, Oshkosh. The independent union received 100 votes and the United Automobile Workers (CIO) six. Eighteen favored neither organization.

Infantile Paralysis Cases Show Increase

Lansing, Mich. (AP)—With four dead from infantile paralysis in Michigan and new cases reported daily, State Health Commissioner Dr. Don W. Gudakust announced today the foundation for Infantile Paralysis would open a full-time research laboratory here in an attempt to learn more about combating the disease.

Gudakust described the outbreak of the disease as extremely serious and said five new cases had been reported daily during the past week in Detroit. At least 15 other cases have developed in the state, and an outbreak has been reported in Sarnia, Ont., across the international boundary from Port Huron, Mich.

Vote Sewers for Depressed Section Committee Recommends City Seek WPA Sanitary Sewer Project

The street and bridge committee Thursday voted to recommend that the city engineer apply for a city-wide WPA project to install sanitary sewers. The recommendation will be submitted at a council meeting Wednesday.

A sanitary sewer in the depressed area at the northwest city limits north of Douglas street was included among the committee's recommendations. Other are on Kernan avenue from the existing sewer to Calumet street; John street from existing sewer to the city limits and on Bounds street from Spencer to Second street.

Bordens Outfit Gambles to Win

Second Game of First Half Title Series Sched- uled for Friday

New London—Bordens outfit gambles to take the first game of the City Industrial league first half championship series under the lights at the city ball park last night, 5 to 3. The game was a benefit for Leonard Dernbach, a injured Bordens player, and netted over $5 at the gate. The second game will be played at 6:15 Monday evening at the Washington High school diamond.

Leonard Hoffman and Bob Ullrich were the opposing pitchers. Ullrich allowing the Milkmen 10 hits and the losers getting eight off Hoffman. Both sides tallied a run in the first and third innings to make it a nip and tuck battle, but 2-base hits by Becker and Wing in the fourth gave Bordens the winning 2-point lead. Two more doubles by Denning and Boese in the fifth added another run.

Gambles had a harder time making the circuit but a 2-bagger by Carl Ebert drove in one in the third inning. Both sides had three men left on third base. John Restle of the winners led the swinging with two hits out of three tries, the first a triple in the third frame on which he tallied.

X-Ray Is Used to Spot Tire Hazards

New Device to be at Firestone Station for Limited Time

Appleton motorists have been invited to inspect their tires with the new x-ray device which reveals hidden nails, broken cords, glass and bruises at the local Firestone Auto Supply and Service store, 700 W. College avenue, this week.

Charles Hahn, manager of the local station, said the apparatus enables car owners to check tires before trouble results or accidents occur. The automobile is elevated several inches from the floor and the x-ray machine is rolled under one wheel. Protective flaps are adjusted to confine the rays to the section of the tire to be inspected. The operator turns a crank which rotates the wheel.

When any foreign object or defective section of cord is revealed, it is spotted and automatically marked. The complete inspection takes only a few minutes.

New Books Added To Library Stock

Best-Seller by Steinbeck Among Volumes Placed In Circulation

New London—John Steinbeck's powerful novel, "The Grapes of Wrath," leader of the 1939 best-seller list, has been added to the rental collection of the New London Public Library with other new volumes this week. Written with a force that is not easily forgotten, the story is one of a great migration of Oklahoma share-croppers, turned off their land, who cover the long trek to California, today's promised land, supposedly overflowing with plenty.

Captain Horatio Hornblower" by C. F. Fawcett is one of the great stories of that last thrilling period of naval sailing ships, the Napoleonic era, when the wooden walls of England's navy were the envy of the world and American sailors were the only ones who dared to meet English sailors ship for ship.

Also in a prominent spot on the best-seller list is "Next to Valour" by John Jennings, an historical novel with colonial New Hampshire as its background. Young James Ferguson, from Scotland, builds his family a home on the frontier, learns the secrets of woods and valleys from the Indian, Toby, and fights with Rogers Rangers in the French and Indian War. He marries and his life in fashionable Portsmouth makes a delightful picture of early American society.

A light novel is Evelyn Wise's book, "As the Pines Grow," a story of farm life and of the conflict between a father and his son, set in the Minnesota farm country where the author once lived.

Motion picture rights have been purchased of one of Louis Bromfield's most recent books, "The Rain Came." The setting of the story is India, and the characters are mostly British. The collection of characters in that out of the way place is unique, and placed in a state of unendurable nervous tension that arises during the terrible heat before the rains, their lives weave on intensely interesting story.

Zachow are spending several days at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Lyle Kurtz.

Time Will Take Care of All This Fuss About Third Term

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—Discretion has become the better part of valor with the rambunctious, appropriately named young Senator Rush Holt of West Virginia, who has decided to forget his anti-third term resolution until next winter.

This postponement is not indulged in through any kindly impulse to spare Mr. Roosevelt from being put over a barrel by the senate. Far from it. Senator Holt was elected as a New Dealer plus, when he was still too young to take his seat and had to wait several months before being sworn in. He arrived in Washington blazing with fine young zeal to do or die for the New Deal. But he didn't get what he wanted and in no time at all he had yanked the vine-leaves out of his hair and was kicking the New Deal hinderside. In that mood he put his anti-third term resolution before the senate some months ago, copying the exact language which the senate adopted in 1928 in opposing a third term for Coolidge, which language in turn had been snatched from the old Springer resolution which the house adopted against Grant, who was the only president to seriously throw out his line for a third term.

Senator Holt is allowing the matter to go over now to accommodate his fellow senators. Most of the Democrats, whether against Mr. Roosevelt or for him, don't want to go on record at this time. They don't want to cross the rubicon until they have to. Besides, some of the Republicans, particularly Republican leader McNary, thinks the whole thing is silly, he having voted against the resolution when it was raised.

Time may very likely dispose of this matter. The chances against Mr. Roosevelt running again seem to me to be stronger than ever. If they let him alone he'll take himself out in his own time and in his own way. He probably won't say anything for a while, but he will make his position known in plenty of time before the nominating convention, which is the main thing Jim Farley wants.

He Probably Wants to Hold Party Together

Some have thought that Mr. Roosevelt was willing to split the party. In the past he has given color to that suspicion. Several of his speeches invited reactionary Democrats to crawl over into the Republican bed. His purge campaign a year ago certainly was no party harmony move. Yet within the last few weeks he has told visitors that he wanted to hold the party together.

Perhaps he has revised his ideas somewhat. After all, Mr. Roosevelt might not feel so good, sitting up at Hyde Park after his term is over, seeing his own party split and replaced by the Republicans as a result of his eight years of leadership.

Ever since the 1936 election, I have thought and have frequently written that Mr. Roosevelt would be infinitely stronger if he renounced a third term and removed that question from the picture. The real driving force behind the repeated successful attacks on the administration has been the determination to break Mr. Roosevelt against a third term.

He'll be Factor After Leaving White House

Furthermore, those Republicans and anti-administration Democrats who think they will be rid of Mr. Roosevelt when he goes out of the White House are likely to be mistaken. He is apt to continue on as one of the powerful forces on American public opinion. It is easily possible that, voluntarily retiring from this third term, Mr. Roosevelt would be more influential as a private citizen at Hyde Park than he would be wrestling a third term by sheer strong-arm.

"FRANCE KEEPS WHAT SHE GETS"

The simplicity of the American people is probably not much different from that of many others.

But we should know that in many respects we are simple.

Last Sunday's issue of the Chicago Tribune gave its readers some assistance in returning to the rock of realism when it ran a long article entitled, "France Keeps What She Gets" in which was detailed the means employed to hammer together the far-flung French empire consisting of nearly 5 million square miles and in which 70 million aliens bow the knee toward Paris for the rights and privileges of existence.

America's attitude toward France, we hope, will always remain friendly. The French are a great race of people, tough, persistent and energetic. Moreover at the birth of America France participated and we cannot forget that endearing fact.

But this condition should not render us insensible to what may be called the facts of life concerning nations. While those inoculated with the germ of internationalism sing all day long about the glories of other races, the purity of their people and the sacredness of their government, it would be worthwhile for the Americans who wish to remain practical men to look at the facts.

The French empire has been substantially built during the last century. And great areas have in fact been taken over since 1880. Practically all this territory was gained in exactly the same manner that Italy gained Ethiopia, by the gun. In some places France used hundreds of thousands of troops and intermittent warfare prevailed for decades.

It may be the best practice for the freer nations of the world, of which France is one, to band together in order to rule in a somewhat kindly manner the unfit, the emotional and the savage. Perhaps it is all right for a nation of 210,000 square miles in Europe to subjugate an additional area of nearly 5 million square miles. That is not the point.

The point is whether or not America will again spend its men and treasure to help hold together these vast empires that have been conquered by the torch and the gun merely because they have become somewhat democratic.

THE BRINK OF HELL, ET CETERA

Michigan's 80 year old governor has been joshed considerably lately because of some quaint remarks concerning the brink of hell, the primrose path and the purity of womanhood suggested to him as he observed hectic sparkles in women's eyes and heard some hilarious laughter above the clink of the ice in the glass.

Governor Dickinson fortified his first statement with some instances in a radio address that literally brought down the house. He used the colors from "Way Down East" and some of the Ten-twenty-third shows of a bygone era where the door was slammed in the daughter's face, her picture turned toward the wall, and a puritan, broken-hearted father sobbed his heart out at her waywardness.

It is interesting to know that there are places even in Michigan where stories that had such righteous vogue 25 years ago are repeated with bated breath at the horrors of the flowing bowl and the slick scoundrels that pour things in to make it flow.

We don't suppose there is any doubt whatever about the truth of Governor Dickinson's statements. There is a primrose path. There is a flowing bowl. And for humanity there will always be a brink of hell, just as certainly as alcoholic indulgence scatters moral restraints for boys and girls alike.

But few today take Governor Dickinson seriously, and this, we think, because the stories of alcohol's wickedness were so overdone in order to accomplish prohibition they have left a sour taste in the mouth worse than the "morning after" liquor itself.

The time will certainly come, however, when the people will pay much better attention to the harm wrought by over-indulgence in alcohol. It will probably take another generation. Time must be provided to forget the Prohibition Crusaders who sought to increase the heat of flames by even pouring on red paint.

MEN WHO MAKE MUD PIES

The farmer who sent us a copy of an eastern paper that printed a letter received by wheat growers from the AAA has unintentionally indicated why the country is so bounteous and bubbling with joy, confidence and prosperity.

For this farmer had been notified that the rate for a federal loan on wheat in his county is 74 cents a bushel, a sum he can borrow upon it any day at the hands of a government that makes its own money out of cheap silver.

This gentleman of agriculture was likewise informed that he could store his wheat on his own farm if he saw fit until the note he made out for the money he borrowed upon it matured and the government would actually pay him 7 cents a bushel for storage. We cannot quote all the letter but here is an interesting paragraph:

"If the market value of wheat at maturity date of the loan is below the loan value, the delivery of wheat satisfies the note and no interest will be charged. If, on the other hand, the price of wheat advances materially above the loan value, farmers may pay off their notes at the face value plus interest (4%) and realize the profit made by having stored their wheat. In this case no storage allowance will be made."

The letter went on to say that if farmers wanted to make 7 cents a bushel by storing their own wheat on their own farms the bin should be on a good floor, with durable sides and roof. But here the mighty Secretary of Agriculture had a lapse, suffered a stroke or a coronary thrombosis, for he actually omitted to either offer to pay for building the bins. This is a shabby trick.

The AAA hasn't yet had someone crack it sufficiently hard on its head to permit the light to flicker through. But figures — if they mean anything — show that the more of this tomfoolery that goes on the farther down toward the basement sag the prices.

And if any of you feel a smile flitting across your faces as you watch your young children making mud pies or pouring colored water into discarded bottles as they practice the childish art of medicine, hold yourselves, for you don't have to look at children to get a laugh.

WILLIAMS OF THE NORTHWESTERN

Despite transportation financial difficulties the presidency of a railroad company is one of the important plums to which many thousands of men look forward with justly ambitious eye.

And it is good to see that the new head of the Northwestern railway system is one who started at the bottom rung of the ladder and worked his way upward entirely by his own efforts.

When a man commences as messenger boy at $10 a month and at 50 finds himself chief executive officer his career signifies that the gate of which Al Smith so feelingly spoke is still wide open in America for all those who are willing to hew to the line and deliver the goods.

There is always something admirable about the fellow who is thrown on his own resources at a tender age but remains undaunted at the task and keeps eternally plugging away at his job, always finding some method of improving the character of the services demanded of him until he has built that reputation for care, ability and loyalty that makes for general confidence.

The promotion of Mr. Williams is just another piece of evidence that opportunity is always abroad to the one who will seize it, and that basically the country is not so far off its keel.

ENGLISH AS IT IS COINED

A fellow by the name of One-Eye Connelly coined the expression "Crashing the Gate." Mr. Connelly was a rare devotee of sports in every form and principally the manly art of the prize ring. But deep down within him burned an intense and celestial fire that stimulated revolt against paying money to see a sport. And all the wiles and crafty plans of sport arenas couldn't keep One-Eye out.

Next "Crashing the Gate" moved into use at society functions attended by a good many One-Eye Connellys who really weren't invited but had the clothes to get in and an appetite for the banquet, champagne included.

And now the English themselves have looked upon "Crashing the Gate" without disdain. It is a two-fisted expression and the English recognize it. They have applied it to those immigrants who smuggle themselves into a country against law and order and even though driven by the disorder and lawlessness of other countries.

It is but justice that One-Eye Connelly come into his own and scowl down at us from some pedestal in a hall of fame for he came by his illustrious record the right way, because his heart and soul were in his actions and he meant everything he said and did.

Fame demands bruises. And One-Eye usually took more than that way than the ring contenders.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

LOOKING BACKWARD

They seem so foolish now, the petty cares That dimmed the shaken crystal of our years. Viewed from a distance, how serene appears The tenor of our lives, our small affairs.

If there were storms, they are forgotten now; If there were shadows, they have left the wall. And the night's lovely blue hangs over all The garden flowers, the blossom-laden bough.

Old age must bring a deepening of faith, A more profound and lasting loveliness, And a composed acceptance as we press Nearer to a companionship with Death.

DALE HARRISON'S
In Old New York

New York—Once upon a time, as I always say when I have difficulty starting a piece for the papers, a gorilla doubled for Marlene Dietrich. If you'll just weigh this statement for a moment you'll see I've really got something there.

The gorilla was telling me about it. The gorilla's name is Ingagi. Currently he is carrying a beautiful dame off to his lair four times a day as the climax of the Arctex number in NTG's Cavalcade of Beauty extravaganza at the Fair. Fortunately, Ingagi has up to now always released the dame very courteously as soon as he got her offstage, but a gorilla is a gorilla, and one can never tell.

Ingagi's real name is Emil Van Horn, so I guess by now you can see that Ingagi is just a man in gorilla's clothing. Lots of people who see Ingagi, however, believe he's the McCoy. Women get white behind the rouge and men's chins set determinedly when Ingagi lumbers on stage.

But to return to Marlene Dietrich. She was doing a picture in one scene of which she was to pretend she was a gorilla. After everyone was well frightened, she was to emerge slowly from her skin—her gorilla skin—and surprise everybody.

Mr. Goldwyn set the entire staff of the M-G-M studios to work designing a gorilla outfit, but when it was done the director snorted and said: "Take it away! It is no good." Thereupon he telephoned Ingagi—Emil Van Horn; and Van Horn doubled for Marlene—the first time anything even faintly resembling a beast ever has doubled for such lovely femininity.

Van Horn is one of three brothers, all in the gorilla business. He even fools chimpanzees and monkeys. He isn't sure whether he could fool another gorilla on account of it has never seemed feasible to try. On several occasions, however, he has faced chimpanzees and scared the life out of them. Monkeys dash away at sight of him, chattering in fright.

Van Horn made his own costume, and there isn't a bit of gorilla about it. The whole thing, including head and arms, weighs about forty pounds. Considering that he has to carry this and a 100-pound young lady around the stage for quite a spell, Mr. Van Horn earns his money.

Once he was being taken outside of the cage for some pictures. With him was a "trainer." When he got out of the automobile he "broke away" from the trainer and headed for a policeman. The officer pulled his revolver and was about to fire when the frightened "trainer" shouted: "Don't shoot! There's a man in there!"

There is quite a steady demand for gorillas, Van Horn said. They are used frequently in pictures, and in stage presentations.

Animal life has been pretty well neglected at the Fair, probably on the assumption that the Bronx and Brooklyn zoos are adequate to satisfy whatever zoological curiosity visitors may have. The one spot at the Fair where wild animals are shown is at Frank Buck's Jungleland, full of lions and elephants and stuff. This attraction is marketed by an imitation mountain which can be seen for a considerable distance around the Fair grounds and which is notable because of the hundreds of little monkeys which frolic upon it.

The only other animal entertainment I can find around the Fair is a dog circus in the Children's world which I am dying to see but which I haven't gotten up nerve to attend, on account of it is for children, and I am now grown up. There is also a place where children can ride on ponies, and this, too, is an experience I envy them.

That is all the Fair has for animal lovers, except for the cunning bear cubs who do tricks only on condition that someone buys them a bottle of milk. This is quite an idea. The concessionaire not only gets a neat profit on the milk, but also gets his bears fed, which is killing two wolves with one stone—the wolf of hunger and the wolf at the door.

Looking Backward

25 YEARS AGO

Friday, July 31, 1914

Italy's officials said Germany alone could influence peace. They had abandoned all hope of mediation. It was anticipated that Austria would declare war on Russia that day. All Germany was put under martial law by command of the kaiser. France's entire military force had been prepared for war. Holland called its forces to arms to defend neutrality of country.

Articles of incorporation were taken out yesterday by the Granulated Milk company, manufacturers of butter, cheese and other dairy products, to be located at Dale. Incorporators were J. J. Stocker, Daniel P. Steinberg and John Melcher.

The Appleton Shirt and Pants company, Inc., which operated a clothing factory at 222 W. Lawrence street, had started a program of expansion into the retail trade, according to F. W. Mueller, president of the company and H. R. Russell, secretary.

E. H. Harwood, W. T. Ross and J. J. Froelich returned Thursday from the annual state Photographers association convention at Madison.

Opinions of Others

EIRE'S UNBORN CHILDREN

From Ireland comes news, in the form of a government census report, that has interest for every western country. The Free State—Eire—has the highest percentage of young unmarried men and women in the world; a ratio of females to males is falling and is now the lowest in Europe and one of the lowest in the world; and there has been a decline in rural births which has been only partially offset by an increase in urban births. The most curious fact brought out is the greater average longevity of the Irish; there are now nearly twice as many elderly people in Eire, for each 100 of the population between the ages of 15 and 64, as there are in the United States and about one-third more than there are in England.

No one knows why people live longer in Ireland. The Times dispatch suggested that it may be "because of the climate and the easy-going, slow tempo of life." If this latter is the case, it might be worth our while to look into the matter. But, by and large, the case of Ireland is typical of what is happening in most western countries and is likely to happen in time all over the world. Late marriages and other factors are bringing the birth rate down. Possibly this tendency can be counteracted, but at the moment it is strong. At the same time our increasing success in fighting the acute diseases of early and middle life enables more people to live on into old age.

The picture is neither all good nor all bad. If mankind made full use of all its resources, there is no question that the earth could support a much larger population, Ireland actually did support nearly twice her present number of people a century ago, before the great famine. She could do it today, and on a higher living standard, if she would.

National barriers to the full development of the world are being torn down. But the truth is that the great multiplying of the nations which caused the learned Dr. Malthus so much concern is slowing down.—New York Times.

A Bystander
In Washington

BY FRESTON GROVER

Washington — A few hours after Senate big sticks had persuaded the President that he could not have the arms embargo act repealed this session, Ambassador Joe Davies spread out a map of Europe before several senators and gave them the fitters.

In his way the ambassador is something of a dramatist. From his listening post in Belgium he had gathered much information in re troop concentrations. He placed it impressively on the map.

Senator Key Pittman, chairman of the foreign relations committee, was present and so were such senators as Harrison of Mississippi and Tydings of Maryland, who married the daughter of Davies' present wife.

The ambassador's well-groomed hand pointed to a couple of million men under arms in Germany, a smaller number in France, several hundred thousand in Poland, a million or more in Italy, others in England, Africa, Russia. The ambassador added enough data of his own to give the figures real color. A lively narrator can put guns across the shoulders of a string of numbers, dress them in fighting pants and set them marching.

This was merely one of the shows being staged in Washington to convince the gears in the governmental machinery that the situation in Europe is critical.

On The Calendar? The administration was badly upset by the failure to get the Senate to act on the repeal of the arms embargo. Such figures as Borah of Idaho and Johnson of Idaho, who had a hand in styming the repealer, think there is more administration yammering about the danger of war and American involvement than the situation deserves. But the comments of these two are frail voices by comparison with the babel of sound on the other side of the issue.

Into that situation the Davies display fits. The administration has given up plans to push the bill this session, but immediately after the dramatic reversal at the midnight White House conference a quiet effort was started to get the bill nominally on the senate calendar, even under a pledge not to bring it up for debate.

The idea is that putting the bill on the calendar will improve the government's position technically in event war should come. Administration leaders are convinced that if war breaks out there will be an immediate public clamor for a repeal of the embargo which shuts off munitions shipments to England and France.

What Is Neutrality? For the Government to make such a change of front as to repeal an embargo during the actual progress of war might be considered a frightfully unneutral act justifying a protest. It is likely to be hurled in such test from Germany or Italy, the countries most likely to be hurt in such circumstances.

On the other hand, administration figures assert that merely to have the embargo repeal bill reported out of committee and put on the calendar would place the government in a better position. Repeal then would not be such a abrupt change.

To get the bill out of the foreign relations committee would require a change of one vote to reverse the 12-to-11 vote by which it was temporarily shelved.

The cold facts remain that not more than a double-handful of people here believe that this government can or will remain neutral in event of a war with England and France on one side and Germany and Italy on the other. But the definition of neutrality adopted by this administration or any other administration never will suit everybody.

Secretary of State Hull says it is neutral to ship arms to a country which (like England) is geographically situated so it can get them, even if another country geographically is at a disadvantage. On the other hand, Senator (Neutrality) Nye of North Dakota insists such things must be taken into consideration in forming a neutral policy.

A widely-held feeling here is that, in spite of any sentiment to the contrary, if England goes to war, she needs supplies from the U. S. she probably will get them.

Behind the News

The country has had dry spells before, but the one that is now baking it in many sections is getting too hot for even Jove Pluvius to handle.

That noise like machine-gun fire you hear over back of Zekke Hosley's place is the corn popping on the cob. Zekke has to pick the stuff with asbestos gloves on, and the other day he was seen spraying potatoes with a fire-extinguisher.

Chet Wiley is in a hospital from burns contracted while picking red-hot tomatoes, and over on sawmill road a feller set fire to his icebox by putting fresh-picked berries in there to cool off.

The farms are so dry in some sections that, when a thundershower comes along, you can hear the raindrops hissing when they hit the ground and turn into steam. Hay is a hazardous enterprise in many states. The hay bursts into flame right on the hay-fork.

And the situation on golf courses is terrible. The fairways are so baked and hard that, once you drive a ball, there is no way to stop it from rolling until it strikes an up-grade. We have a waterhole at my club, and the dry spell has made it faster than the greens.

YES, THAT'S THE TROUBLE ALL RIGHT

Under the
CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Madison, Wis. — Republicans who have been striving so strenuously for many weeks past to enact their reorganization program in law maintain that one of their purposes is to assure uniformity in the pattern of state government.

But a glance at the construction of state government now and a comparison with what is proposed shows that such uniformity will not be attained even if the Republicans pass all the reorganization bills they have introduced thus far.

There will be one man commissions, five man commissions, and three man commissions, just as before. There will be six man boards, and nine man boards.

The conservation commission will be of six members. The industrial commission of three members. The public service commission, which has as much work as either of them, will consist of but one member, however. The board of agriculture will have seven members, the university board of regents nine.

QUESTIONS
The Republicans as time goes on will find themselves answering many questions posed by the curious on their reorganization plan.

For example, there has never been an explanation attempted of the reason for the exemption of the important industrial commission from the reshuffling program. Governor Heil says he wants one man industrial commission, operating in fact that the end-products or by-products and ash. It is a common error to assume that when physicians find the nutrition is poor—malnutrition—the remedy is to provide more food. This naive mistake is often made by wiseacre women in club circles, for instance when some such club undertakes to correct malnutrition in school children by furnishing a free lunch for the poor children. Of course children nearly always can take any little extras in the way of eats the nice kind ladies may be disposed to provide for them, but it is a mistake to think that any such pleasant gesture can correct what ails the under par children. Seldom is it deprivation of nourishment.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

SENSE AND NONSENSE

One inspired laymen condemns sandwiches. He asserts that in order that the "system" may get the full food value it is necessary to chew meat and bread separately, and to combine the two foods in one meal is a fundamental error which explains, well, all sorts of evil if you are not informed on physiology.

It is notable that most of the "food specialists" who are "well known" to the wiseacre public and most commonly cited as "authorities" by wiseacre laymen who think they know as much or more than the "ordinary" doctor knows about food, diet and nutrition, are not physicians, not chemists and not even graduates of any recognized school—they are usually just shrewd gentlemen who understand how to appeal to popular credulity.

Altho I have been answering questions from all sorts of people in all aspects of health and disease for years, it still perplexes me to account for the childlike credulity of even well educated, brainy people—business men, lawyers, teachers and the like—in reference to questions of vitals and nutrition. I suppose it is the natural result of the wretched deal we all get in the common school or high school on elementary physiology.

Food is material which, absorbed or taken into the body of an organism, serves for purposes of work, maintenance of vital processes, growth and repair. Strictly speaking, that would include oxygen, or in the case of plants, carbon dioxide, water and the materials known as protein, carbohydrate, vitamins and minerals, salts. Practically when we speak of food we mean vitals, something to eat.

Nutrition means much more than food or vitals. Nutrition is the sum of the processes by which an organism (animal, plant, man) absorbs or takes in and utilizes food. Nutrition includes, therefore, assimilation or absorption, digestion, metabolism or oxidation or combustion of the material, and excretion of the end-products or by-products and ash. It is a common error to assume that when physicians find the nutrition is poor—malnutrition—the remedy is to provide more food. This naive mistake is often made by wiseacre women in club circles, for instance when some such club undertakes to correct malnutrition in school children by furnishing a free lunch for the poor children. Of course children nearly always can take any little extras in the way of eats the nice kind ladies may be disposed to provide for them, but it is a mistake to think that any such pleasant gesture can correct what ails the under par children. says amebas still present in intestines. We have four children and I am worried. (Mrs. D. F. M.)

Answer—You should be. Your friend should not impose such risk upon your children or others in your home. Amebic dysentery is as communicable via the amebas given off from the intestine, as typhoid fever is, if convalescing typhoid patient or a typhoid carrier is living in close association with you. Advise your friend that a physician forbids her visit in your home.

Injection of Hernia
Inguinal hernia size of egg. Have had about a dozen injections. Now hernia is less than half the original size. But I can't see how healing can go on under the pressure of a truss. (G. F.)

Answer—I advise you to continue under your doctor's treatment. I know he is skilled and successful in that method. The constant support of the hernia is indispensable for success.

Carbonated Beverages
Is there any harm in the use of carbonated beverages. We do not use alcohol or tobacco in any form, but are rather fond of "soda pop" and other carbonated beverages. (Mrs. P. L.)

Answer—They're all right. Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Writer's names are never printed. Only inquiries of general interest will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Requests for diagnosis or treatment of individual cases cannot be considered. Address Dr. William Brady, 265 El Camino, South, Beverly Hills, Calif. (Copyright, 1939)

Clintonville to Borrow $50,000, Council Decides

Also Votes to Bond City For $100,000 to Get Lower Interest Rate

Clintonville—At an adjourned meeting of the city council Tuesday evening, it was voted to borrow an additional $50,000 for city expenses. The aldermen accepted the recommendation of the finance committee to bond the city for $100,000. It was explained that money could be borrowed now at a very low interest rate, approximately 2 per cent. With this amount the city will pay off present notes of indebtedness of about $50,000 on which more than 4 per cent interest is being paid.

Ordinance No. 89, which deals with the abolishment of police pensions in this city, had its first reading.

Announcement was made at the council session that the judgment of the circuit court at Waupaca was in favor of Miss Nellie Pushor and Sam Finch to the amount of $500 and costs of $103.10. The suit was the result of the cutting of a number of small trees along the boundary line between the Pushor and Finch farm and the Clintonville Municipal airport last fall. The trees were cut along with underbrush by PWA workmen on the project.

The wages of John Tomlin, caretaker at the city athletic field, and Henry Bonnin, weed commissioner, were set at 40 cents per hour.

The regular August meeting of the city council will be held next Tuesday evening.

PAPERS DIDN'T MAKE MUCH FUSS ABOUT OPENING OF WAR

No banner headlines, not even a 2-column headline like the Post-Crescent uses now on anything from a strike to a murder, announced the opening of the World war to residents of Appleton 25 years ago. The papers carried the dramatic news bulletin: "Vienna, July 28, 3 p.m.—Official notice of declaration of war has been sent to Serbia by Austria. No further particulars available at this hour. Great excitement prevails in this city." But the bulletin was given a place of second importance. The big story in both the Appleton Daily Post and the Appleton Evening Crescent that day was the chance that a large new industry would be established in the city. (Post-Crescent Photos)

Prospect of New Industry in Appleton Took Newspaper Lead As War Started 25 Years Ago

Twenty-five years ago today two Appleton editors, looking over their available front page stories, decided the one that merited the most important place, on the right side of the page, was the one that told of an unnamed new industry which might be established in the city.

Also on the editor's desk that day lay a story announcing Austria's declaration of war on Serbia, but the editors apparently didn't think much of it. They relegated it to second place.

They, however, were not the only ones little excited by news of the conflict which was destined to become the greatest war in history. The Appleton Daily Post that day carried an interview with J. G. Sawall, then recently arrived in Appleton from Budapest, Austria-Hungary, in which he declared, "I do not believe any of the crowned heads of Europe will take the responsibility of plunging the whole of Europe into war by taking the first step in the present Serbian crisis."

Sawall, who was in Budapest for many years as a representative of the International Harvester company, now lives at 707 W. Prospect avenue.

Saw Dangers
He did go on to point out, however, that various alliances and agreements in which the countries were bound to help one another might involve practically every big power in Europe, and the results of such a war, he added, "are too awful to contemplate."

Such a situation did not seem imminent, apparently, for Sawall devoted the rest of his interview to the geography, scenery and living conditions in Austria-Hungary and Serbia.

On the same day the Appleton Evening Crescent carried a story from Washington, D. C., which displayed the same optimistic note. It read:

"Dispatches from the American embassies at Berlin and St. Petersburg late last night said prospects for peace in Europe were brighter than at any time since rupture of diplomatic relations between Austria and Serbia."

Not Much Excitement
The stories describing the opening of the war carried "Extra" captions, it is true, but they did not designate an extra edition of the newspaper, merely called attention to the stories. In the reproduction of the first page of the Daily Post that day it will be observed that a French woman's acquittal in a murder trial also was labeled "Extra."

It was not until four days later, Aug. 1, that one of the Appleton papers commented editorially on the war that was to involve almost every country in the world.

Even then, while admitting the gravity of the situation, the Daily Post said "there is no reason for the people of the United States to become unduly alarmed." But it warned that "the United States, far as she is removed from the scorching crucible, cannot expect to escape with unburned fingers."

The magnitude of the struggle was beginning to be apparent.

Editorial Comment
"Probably never before in history have the conditions for a world catastrophe developed with such overnight suddenness," the editorial began. "The ultimate results stagger the imagination. Some of the great representative nations may pass off the world's stage altogether, to exist thereafter only in history books."

That the war had deeper roots than the assassination of an Austrian archduke was also becoming evident. Race antagonism, commercial antagonism and fulfillment of treaty obligations were named in the editorial as some of the causes.

It also recalled "the unprecedented war preparedness of the last 10 years" and wondered if it had not been brought about because of an instinctive feeling in every nation of Europe that a calamity was approaching with the measured steps of fate.

People were beginning to realize that the war was more than a mere squabble, but the leading story on the front page the day before, July 31, was not the one which told that Germany and France were expected to clash any hour, but one which announced that a group of Appleton citizens planned to apply for re-assessment.

There was no editorial comment on the struggle in the Evening Crescent in the first two weeks of the war.

Belgium, Caught in War March of 1914, Now Turns Worries to New Menace of Air Fighting

Twenty-five years ago—July 28, 1914—the world was startled. A few days later Germany invaded Belgium. This story, telling what's worrying Belgium today, was written by J. C. Stark, AP Chief of Bureau in London, after a first-hand survey.

Brussels, Belgium—(AP)—A quarter of a century after the German invasion of Belgium—in August, 1914—Belgians are worrying aplenty about the danger of a new war. But they don't believe history will repeat.

They think, in any event, that if a new European war should come, Belgium would not suffer the first blow as she did in 1914.

There would be a good chance for their country to stay out altogether, Belgians say, except for one thing—the air.

The eastern frontier with Germany, is better fortified than it was 25 years ago. The fortifications cover a longer stretch. Behind them is a stronger army, always on guard.

And besides, Belgians say, the whole military situation has changed since 1914. In the event of a new war between Germany and France, for instance, some military experts believe neither would try immediately to break through the strong land fortifications of the other.

The first deadly assaults, they say, would be from the air. And that's why Belgium worries so much. It's that frontier—a relative new one—which many Belgians fear would be violated first. It's the one Belgium is least prepared to defend—and the most difficult one to defend.

On the Main Line
The shortest route, as a crow flies, between Berlin and Paris is across Belgium. Between Berlin and London, it's across Holland. But between London and Munich or some other southern German cities, again it's across Belgium.

Belgium could be avoided, as well as Holland, by British, French or German planes carrying out attacks on the enemy. But in warfare especially it would be easy for pilots to get off their courses.

Under the new foreign policy of complete independence, Belgium is committed to defend her own frontiers. This is as true of the air as of the land.

If French, British, or German planes flew across—intentionally or unintentionally—once or twice—the enemy country might merely lodge protests with Belgium and demand that she protect her frontier. If it happened several times, however, the other country might resort to the same course.

So the battlefield might be over Belgium—and might eventually draw Belgium into the war.

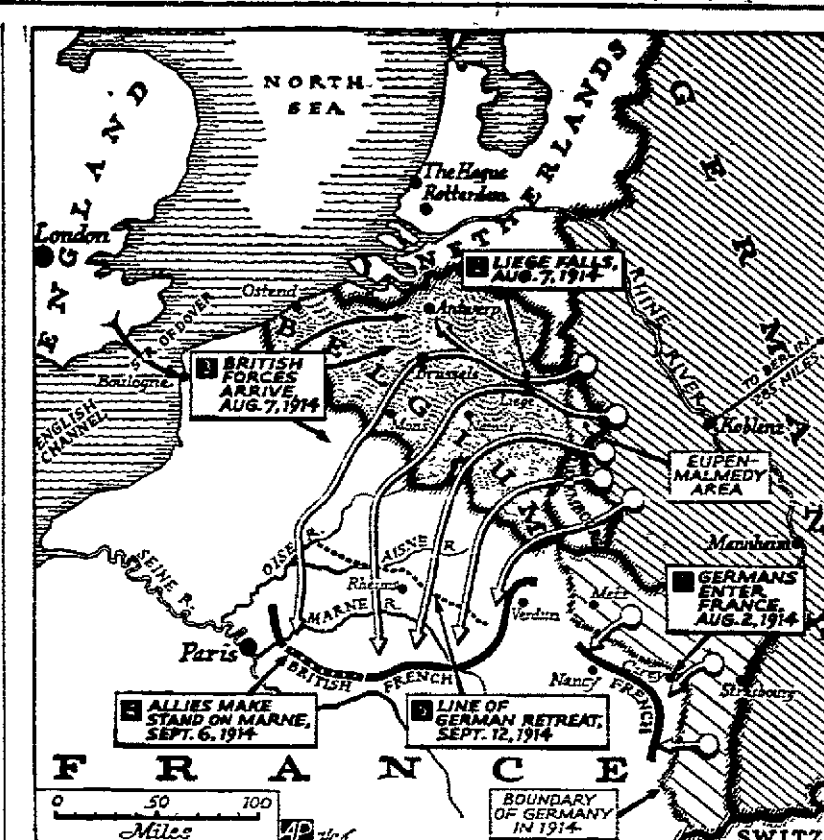

The Belgian 'Sudeten'
Another big worry in Belgium just now is her "Sudetenland."

This is the frontier territory which Belgium acquired from Germany after the war—the cantons of Eupen, Malmédy and St. Vith. Adolf Hitler hasn't asked for their return. Hitler has even put them in the same category with France's Alsace-Lorraine as territory to which he has no further claim.

Nevertheless they've become a hotbed of pro-Nazi propaganda and political agitation, according to disclosures in parliament.

Seventy thousand people live in the three cantons. Eupen is the largest, St. Vith the smallest. Germans preponderate in both. In Malmédy, however, the population is largely Walloon (French).

White arrows on this map indicate the column-centers of eight invading German armies. The five that run through Belgium trace the great wheeling movement by which Germany almost won the war in its first six weeks.

"Travel agencies" sponsor tours into Germany for the youths of the districts. At St. Vith, for instance, thirty young men are said to have been taken to Germany, given courses of instruction, and returned in military formation.

Politically, the pro-Nazi groups have made little headway. In the general election in April this year, the party considered as pro-Nazi—the "Heimatreue Front"—failed to get a seat in parliament.

Picnic Food

Picnics are great fun, whether served in one's own yard or in a favorite spot in the woods. Moreover, a picnic meal is simple, easy-to-prepare and a delightful change on summer days.

Food for the picnic should be of a kind that is easily carried. A few well chosen foods in bountiful quantities are best. Sandwiches for picnics are a staple and the contents can be varied widely.

Raw vegetables such as celery, radishes, carrots, whole tomatoes and lettuce are good vegetables to include on a picnic menu and their crispness and freshness appeal greatly.

Fresh fruit, cookies, and cup cakes make easily carried desserts. "Goody" desserts should be outcasts.

To make picnics really enjoyable events plan a surprise that's bound to click. Here's how: Serve a dish of piping hot escalloped potatoes and a cold tasty shrimp salad. They're easy, and different from the usual fare. The potatoes can be prepared in an oven glass casserole. Then, just before you start out, wrap the casserole and all in layers of paper. You'll be surprised how hot they will keep. And the salad can be kept cold by wrapping it in a similar manner immediately after removing it from the refrigerator.

Escalloped Potatoes
Shrimp Salad
Assorted Sandwiches
Cantaloupe or Honeydew Melon
Cup Cakes
Iced Tea, Coffee, or Milk

Escalloped Potatoes

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon pepper
1 1/2 cups milk
1 quart thinly sliced potatoes
Melt butter in a saucepan, add flour, salt and pepper, blend to a smooth paste. Add milk slowly, stirring until smooth. Heat to boiling. Add sliced potatoes, again heat to boiling, stirring constantly, then turn into a well buttered casserole. Bake in a slow oven 300 degrees F. about 50 minutes, or until potatoes are tender. Remove from the oven, 15 minutes to brown the top.

Shrimp Salad

3 No. 1 cans shrimp
1 1/2 cup celery, chopped
3 tablespoons sweet pickle, chopped
2 cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons lemon juice
6 hard cooked eggs
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
Remove dark vein from shrimp. Add chopped celery, pickles and lemon juice. Remove yolks from hard cooked eggs, and add finely chopped yolks to mayonnaise. Chop whites and add with salt to shrimp. Fold mayonnaise lightly into salad mixture. Arrange lettuce leaves in a casserole or refrigerator dish and place the salad lightly on top. Chill thoroughly.

My Neighbor Says—

Meringue is improved by a dash of salt and a little grated lemon peel.

Always iron eucalyptus on the wrong side. Ironing on the right side robs them of their luster.

Wash metal door hinges occasionally with warm soapsuds, wipe dry and rub with oil to prevent their rusting.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

There are certain fairly evident psychological sex differences. Men and women do not view things alike, and their emotional tempo is not the same. But if you introvertive wives are linked to introvertive husbands who are taciturn and miserly, then you have drawn more than your share of ill luck.

CASE O-105; Henry S., aged 27, is an excellent automobile mechanic.

"But he is very inconsiderate of his whies," his wife explained tearfully.

"We will not give me a penny of my own, but insists on doing all the purchasing, even to my rouge and face powder. If friends drop in unexpectedly, I may be embarrassed by not having enough bread to make sandwiches and not a dime in the house with which to buy a loaf.

"Besides, he never gives me any affection except when he wants marital relations. I have complained of this, but he tells me that my idea of 'tenderness' is simply 'kid stuff'."

"I pointed out that this wasn't his attitude before marriage, for he was very attentive then, but it doesn't do any good. Dr. Crane, are all men like my husband?"

DIAGNOSIS: There are certain psychological sex differences which seem fairly characteristic of men versus women.

Which sex, for instance, stows away its food at a dinner table as if it were a task to be accomplished as soon as possible, and which sex is more inclined to mince or dawdle along, enjoying the scalloped edges of the grapefruit or the colorful salad?

Men are more likely to be the "gaspers" of pleasure while women more often are the "mincers." And this same distinction is often evident in their love behavior.

Women like to be wooed for hours. They enjoy dilly-dallying tactics, which may begin with flowers and a dinner date, followed by theater and a moonlight drive afterwards.

Matter-Of-Fact Males
There is a physiological basis for this slower emotional development of the female. But you will also observe the same type of mincing or dawdling in the older men who have lost some of their youthful vigor and verve.

If you were to visualize a male connoisseur of food and drink, how old a man would you conjure up? If you were to imagine an man who admiringly views his glass of wine, inhales its fragrance, and appreciates the sparkling beverage, what age do you have tagged upon this man?

I presume most of you will be thinking in terms of middle-aged men, not impetuous youth. The life tempo of young men is geared to a higher speed. They seldom care to poke along at 20 miles an hour or fritter valuable hours making love. Young men move in fox trot tempo, whereas their fathers or grandfathers are attuned to waltz time. In her affections, however, even a young woman is geared to waltz time, so this is why women frequently complain about the unmannerly behavior of their husbands regarding marital relations.

How Women View Romance
A girl's idea of romance involves what a man disdains as "frilly" things, such as little gallantries like

'End Plays' Are Important To Defenders

BY ELY CULBERTSON

Many of the "end plays" in which a defender may find himself are caused by lack of foresight on the part of his own partner.

Today's hand is taken from a recent duplicate game. In comparing the defense of two East players, we will discover why it is that certain players come out with "top scores" and others with average or less.

The bidding:

East South West North
1 heart 1 club Pass 2 diamonds
Double 2 spades Double 3 clubs
Double Pass Pass Pass

Obviously the North-South bidding was over-vigorous.

East's double of two diamonds was not a penalty double; West had not yet been heard from and, despite the fact that both North and South were bidding, East's double was of the take-out variety.

When the opponents kept on going, West's double of spades and East's of clubs were of course, for penalties.

At two tables the bidding, the opening lead, the final contract, and the play up to the seventh trick were identical. West opened the heart eight, East put up the king, and promptly laid down the ace and nine of clubs. Declarer finished on the second round, winning with the ten, then drew East's club queen. The heart queen was then played out, and East won. At both tables, East now laid down the spade king and, curiously enough, both declarers permitted this to hold. But now, at the seventh trick, the defense at the two tables diverged sharply. At one table, East, after holding the spade king, promptly laid down the spade queen. Declarer won and led his singleton diamond, and poor West was "hooked." He could not afford to pass the trick, hence had to win with the ace, but now the best he could do was lay down the spade jack, which he had to concede the spade ten to declarer.

At the other table East, at the seventh trick, clearly foresaw the possibility that his own partner might be put into an "end-play." Hence, after holding the spade king, he carefully shifted to a diamond. He realized that, on the bidding, South had no more than one diamond. If that card were removed so that South could not use it as an exit, West, on winning with the diamond ace, would have a safe return, a low spade to East's marked queen. That is the way it turned out. West won with the diamond ace and returned a low spade, East putting up the queen. Now declarer was helpless. He won and eventually had to concede two spade tricks to West's J-9. It would have done him no good to hold up on West's play of the queen, since West would merely lead another spade.

At Table Number 1, where the three club contract had been defeated only 500 points, East-West did not get a good match-point score, inasmuch as they could have bid and made a vulnerable three no trump contract. At Table Number 2, by defeating the three club contract 800 points, East-West came out with top score.

holding her coat for her, opening the door ahead of her, assisting her into the automobile and then going around to climb into the driver's seat.

Young men put up with these things during courtship, and even fool their sweethearts by their apparent ardor, but after she has signed on the dotted line, so to speak, they figure, "Why continue the sales talk when the deal has been closed?"

But women like this "sales talk" and a wise husband will keep his conversational "line" in constant use and pour on the "verbal" bouquets even if he no longer patronizes the corner florist. Taciturn and miserly husbands are enough to drive any woman frantic.

Dr. Crane will give personal attention to questions on psychological problems. Write him, in care of the Appleton Post-Crescent, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and a dime to cover printing and typing costs. Letters and readers' names are never published.

Swarthout, Rubenstein and Dickson to Appear in City On-Community Artist Series

GLADYS SWARTHOUT, star of opera, concert radio and more recently of sound films, will be the first artist to appear in the Community Artist Series for the coming season, according to Dean Carl J. Waterman of the Lawrence Conservatory of Music.

Besides Miss Swarthout, who appears in Lawrence Memorial chapel Monday, Oct. 30, this season's Artist Series includes Donald Dickson, baritone of the Metropolitan Opera association, in December, the Stradivarius String quartet of New York in January, the Lawrence College choir in February, and the famous Polish pianist, Arthur Rubenstein, in April.

Gladys Swarthout, the young mezzo-soprano, has made a swift rise to fame without traveling the usual long, hard road to success. Her ability, charm, good looks and willingness to work have speeded her along with short cuts at every point. However, her determination to succeed was evident when she was only 13 years old. At that age she pinned up her curls, calmly announced she was 19 and applied for the position of contralto soloist in a Kansas City church. The choir-master gave her the job. During the same year a wealthy family from Kansas City heard Gladys Swarthout's first recital. Her talent and courage, especially in her insistence on repeating a song that had not been presented to her satisfaction the first time, won her approval and they offered to finance her career.

Now Miss Swarthout has behind her a career which includes the Chicago Civic Opera, Metropolitan Opera, coast-to-coast tours, broadcasting engagements of a decidedly lucrative nature, and starring roles in four motion pictures.

Dickson Popular

A rising young star of the Metropolitan opera and of concert and radio is Donald Dickson, baritone. Since 1932 when he first attracted attention by winning a national contest for young singers not yet launched on their careers, Dickson has become nationally famous. He was aided considerably by Arthur Rodzinski, conductor of the Cleveland Symphony orchestra. After continuing his vocal studies at the Juilliard School of Music in New York, he was made a member of the Metropolitan Opera. Dickson has become well-known to the general public through his radio appearances.

Making his first appearance in Appleton in April is Arthur Rubenstein, famous Polish pianist, whose critics constantly commend him not only for the brilliance and excellence of his playing, but for his exciting and dynamic qualities. His tremendous energy is also displayed in the numerous lengthy concert tours which he has made to all parts of the world year after year. Rubenstein can be classed among the few child prodigies of musical history, for after giving his first concert in Warsaw at the age of six, he made his formal debut at eleven, playing the Mozart A Minor Concerto with his godfather, Joseph Joachim, conducting the orchestra.

Last season during his American tour he gave 45 concerts, among which were three appearances in Carnegie hall with the New York Philharmonic orchestra.

The two ensemble programs included in this year's series will be given by the Lawrence College choir, under the direction of Dean Waterman a concert of varied choral music which is greeted annually with great interest and enthusiasm and the Stradivarius String quartet of New York. The string quartet has been hailed in Europe and the United States as one of the best organizations presenting chamber music. Wolfe Wolfinsohn, first violinist, Bernard Robbins, second violinist, Marcel Dick, violist and Iwan D'Archembeau, cellist, are the members of the quartet.

Church Club Is Entertained on Boating Party

MR. and Mrs. Paul R. Stevens were host and hostess to members of D. E. C. club of the First Congregational church at a boating party last evening on their power boat, the Edith. Eighteen young people were taken down river to Combined Locks where a picnic supper was eaten and songs were sung around a campfire.

Forty-five members of Zion Lutheran Ladies society held a social meeting Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Louis Thies, 330 E. Spring street. Games provided entertainment. In two weeks the society will have an outing at the cottage of Mrs. Herman Lemke at Rickers Bay.

Pilgrim Fellowship of First Congregational church will have a picnic at 5:30 Sunday evening at Alicia park. Wieners and marshmallows will be roasted. Miss Deloris Stueck is chairman of the event to which new as well as old members are invited.

Choosing its entertainment to suit the weather, the M. S. M. club of First Methodist church will hold a mixed swim tonight at the Y. M. C. A. pool. During the last few weeks the club has been playing tennis.

Miss Catherine Schuh Of Freedom Is Engaged

Simon Schuh, Freedom, has announced the approaching marriage of his daughter, Catherine, to Joseph Sevicik, Kenosha. The wedding will take place Sept. 16 at St. Nicholas church, Freedom.

GLADYS SWARTHOUT WILL SING HERE

Gladys Swarthout, famous opera, radio, and screen star, will be the first to appear on the Community Artist Series this fall, Lawrence college authorities announced today. Donald Dickson, operatic baritone, and Arthur Rubenstein, internationally famous pianist, are other artists who will perform on the series.

Charge Two Young Men With Looting Store at Neenah

Preliminary Hearing for Brother Texans Set for Monday Morning

Neenah — Two young men, L. T. Lane, 25, and William Lane, 28, Mingus, Tex., were arraigned before Municipal Judge S. J. Luchinger Thursday afternoon on a charge of grand larceny. They didn't enter a plea and are being held for preliminary hearing at 11 o'clock Monday morning in municipal court. Their bonds were set at $800 each.

The brothers were arrested by Neenah police at about 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon after allegedly rifling a cash drawer in the vault at the Kell-Werner Electric company, 114 W. Wisconsin avenue.

Police reported that the two men walked into the store at about 2:30 in the afternoon, and drawing the attention of Miss Naomi Gibson, bookkeeper, the only occupant at the time by making a pretense of purchasing an article at the front of the store, while the other walked over to the vault. When Miss Gibson noticed him bending over near the vault, he told her he was picking up his hat.

Pair Is Followed

The two men left the store, and Miss Gibson, suspecting that the cash drawer had been rifled, called Jerry Owen, an employee who was working in the basement. Owen followed the two men, stopping them in front of the Neenah Hardware, a block away. In the meantime, police had been notified, and before the two men got to their car, which was parked at the end of the block, they arrested them.

Police found $48 in loose cash in the pocket of L. T. Lane and about $15 in his wallet.

The men told police that they had been working concessions at carnivals.

Finish McKinley School Building Addition by Aug. 5

$30,000 PWA Construction Project Is Near Completion

Neenah — Construction of the $30,000 2-unit addition to McKinley school in the Fourth ward will be completed about Aug. 5, according to Arthur Steiner, superintendent for the Steiner Construction company, Appleton, the contractors.

The two additions are completed except for washing down the outside, painting, installing lockers, some steamfitting, plumbing and electrical work and general cleaning.

The brick additions of the PWA project have been attached to the east and west corners on the north side of the building with a courtyard and driveway in between. Each addition is 52 by 35 feet, and the two additions are identical in construction and layout. They contain two classrooms, each 23 by 32 feet, a clinic room 8 by 31 feet, a teacher's room 9 by 18 feet, two additions to corridors, each 18 feet long, two vestibules 8 by 16 feet and two study rooms 24 by 13 feet.

The additions are one story or 27 feet high, and the outside walls are brick, the same as the rest of the structure.

A driveway has been constructed on the north side of the building leading into the courtyard from Harrison street. About 25 men have been working on the job.

The two additions occupy the playground space, so the city council, at the request of the board of education, purchased a lot adjacent to the school which will be used for playgrounds.

Petitioners Ask For Field Lights

Provision Is Sought for Night Ball Games At Menasha

Menasha — Petitioners requesting installation of flood lights at the city baseball park for night baseball, softball and football games are being circulated in Menasha. The petitions are being signed by many people, as one man has secured over 90 signatures and another has over 125.

There is a possibility that Menasha might be able to enter a higher baseball league with the installation of lights. The grandstand, built under a WPA project, is one of the finest in this section of the state and the diamond also is a good one although it will improve with care.

Organization of a Class D baseball league in the state has been debated for some time and if a lighted diamond were available, Menasha might be considered in the league. Cities considering organization of the league include Green Bay, La Crosse, Fond du Lac, Wisconsin Rapids, Madison, Racine, Sheboygan and Appleton.

Handful of Coal Produces 2 Million Volts of Electricity

Liège, Belgium.—(P)—(Via Yankee Clipper)—The Belgian physicist, Max Morand, demonstrated today a two-story high tower in which a handful of coal dust produces 2,000,000 volts of electric energy.

The tower is a new kind of power-house for the electrical energy which is used to smash atoms. Roughly it contains an electric generator at the bottom, a large, cigar-shaped piece of metal at the top, and a pipe through which coal dust circulates.

The pipe carries the dust particles over the generator, up over the surface of the "cigar" and then down the other side to repeat the circuit. The particles pick up electrical charges from the generator, and when they reach the cigar, deposit the electricity on its polished surface.

In this way a continual charge of electricity is built up on the surface of the cigar. It can be drawn off as a continuous current of direct electricity.

In experiments to date Morand has obtained voltages running from 700,000 to 1,000,000 volts.

Two merits are claimed for the new power device. One, cheapness. It costs only about $1,000 to build. The other, the dust particles maintain an even build-up of electrical energy, something which Morand said has been difficult to achieve with direct current running into millions of volts.

Ten stores in Beloit reported sales of $78,187, an increase of 5.7 per cent over last year and a 14.1 per cent decrease from May.

Twenty-four stores in LaCrosse reported sales of $123,164, a decrease of 2.4 per cent from last year and of 12.8 per cent from May.

Twelve stores in Appleton reported sales of $148,072, an increase of 4.9 per cent over last year and a 7.6 per cent decrease from May.

Thirteen stores in Green Bay reported sales of $276,906, an increase of 4.6 per cent over last year and a decrease of 12.9 per cent from May. Fifteen stores in Manitowish reported sales of $91,513, an increase of 5 per cent over last year, a 4.8 per cent decrease from May.

Among stores reporting, motor vehicle dealers showed the largest gain throughout the state, of 27 per cent, over last June. Sporting goods were next, in that order, showing dealers, jewelers and filling stations the influence of the holiday spirit, perhaps.

Lumber and building materials dealers and hardware stores reported gains of 5.3 per cent and 2.4 per cent, respectively, over last year.

Coogan, Grable Head For Divorce Courts

San Francisco.—(P)—The marriage of Betty Grable and Jackie "The Kid" Coogan, marked by two separations and a dramatic reconciliation, headed for the divorce courts today.

The shapely blonde actress revealed here last night she would sue for divorce on mental cruelty grounds tomorrow or early next week in Los Angeles.

Coogan admitted early this week in Hollywood that the pair had separated for the second time this year, but Betty said it wasn't so and denied divorce plans. Last night she declared the "confusion" of being here and having her lawyer in Southern California led her to deny the earlier report and expressed unhappiness over the contemplated divorce.

The Coogans first separated when Jackie was on a personal appearance tour. Betty became ill and was operated on for appendicitis. Her husband flew from El Paso to her bedside and a reconciliation followed.

Duluth and Superior End Bridge Controversy

Washington.—(P)—Mayor C. R. Berglund of Duluth, Minn., said last night an agreement had been reached between representatives of the neighboring cities of Duluth and Superior, Wis., for settlement of a controversy over pending bridge legislation.

The settlement would give Superior equal rights with Duluth in approving or disapproving acquisition of existing bridges and construction of a new span across the St. Louis river between the two cities, he said. A bill passed by the house and now before the senate, commerce committee would have conferred jurisdiction on Duluth alone.

A proposal to amend it in line with the cities' agreement was adopted by Wisconsin and Minnesota senators for submission to the subcommittee now considering the measure.

"Isn't that a laugh?" asked Roscoe Turner, speed flyer, as he finished playing a film role as an aviator—having stayed on the ground throughout the filming. Producers, wary of their star, hired a double for the stunts. Turner, seen with Jean Parker, used to do dangerous stunts for the movies before filmland decided to feature him.

By Jimmie Fidler

Hollywood.—Why do stars cry and moan when, after ten years of success, they see their careers fading? After all, they've really lived those ten years. If they have been caged, they should be independently wealthy, even in these taxational days.

Yet, the moment fame's light begins to dim, they can see fear begin to dig trenches in their faces. Why can't they all be like Marian Nixon, who slid uncomplainingly from stardom, married happily, and now graces a lovely home that is lighted by the smiles of two children? I'll wager my last dollar that Marian, as an actress, never found the happiness she's getting out of life today.

Of course, acting does get in the blood. Once an actor always an actor is an axiom. And no doubt, after a woman has tasted adulation, adoration and the bowing and scraping that go with movie success, it is difficult to become just an ordinary mortal.

But it strikes me that fading stars assume the wrong attitude. Instead of being ashamed and frightened by their involuntary retreat from fame, they should realize that it's only natural for all careers to end. That's doubly true of stars who've been on top for ten or more years. They've had twice the average success—something of which to be proud.

On second thought, perhaps it's the unimportance of their success that frightens them. Retiring authors leave books as monuments to their success. Retiring actors leave paintings. Retiring artists leave nothing and are soon forgotten. Perhaps that's what hurts and scares them.

Cuff Notes: John Conte, of radio, is telling friends he wants Ann Sheridan to become Mrs. Conte. Those horn-rimmed specs Mickey Rooney is wearing aren't movie-star show; the kid has astigmatism. Five will get you ten, David Niven marries Jacqueline Dyer when he visits her in England soon. Ruth Chatterton is paying ex-husband Ralph Forbes for the lead in her Broadway comeback play. Rudy Vallee still plays a florist for weekly bouquets to Dorothy Lamour.

Memories that bless and burn: When European newspapers said Jeanette MacDonald had been killed by a jealous princess—and she had to appear in Paris to disprove it. When Olive Borden, clad in a costume so scanty that even chorus girls paled, had to ride from dress-

Safety Record Is Boggling Down

June Traffic Fatalities More Than for Same Period Last Year

Chicago.—(P)—The nation's success in saving lives on the highways over a period of 20 consecutive months stopped short in June, like an automobile at a red light.

The steady improvement ended when June deaths totalled 2,330, an increase of 20, or 1 per cent, over June, 1938, the National Safety Council reported today.

It was the first time since November, 1937, that the monthly traffic toll was more than for the corresponding month of the preceding year. However, the council said the first six months of 1939 still showed a 5 per cent reduction from the half-year figure of 1938, 13,500 deaths compared with 14,160.

The council said the boggling down of the safety record after a cumulative saving of 8,782 lives could be blamed on rural areas, where deaths increased in April, May and 7 per cent in June. Cities generally reduced deaths 8 per cent in June, although those in the 10,000-25,000 population class had a 53 per cent increase.

Twenty-one states had more deaths in June this year than last, but for the six months period 24 states showed reductions.

Rhode Island boasted the best record for the six months, with a decline of 37 per cent in fatalities representing a saving of 15 lives.

Committee Outlines Plans to Dedicate Appleton City Hall

Preliminary plans for the dedication of Appleton's new city hall were mapped at a meeting of the dedication committee last night.

Because the exact date of moving is not known, no date for the dedication was set but it is expected the ceremony will be held on the first Saturday after the offices are moved into the building. A few talks will be given and the public will be given an opportunity to inspect the building during the afternoon and the evening and on Sunday.

Chairmen of the committee are Joseph A. Fox, city treasurer, and Carl J. Becher, city clerk. Others on the committee are Aldermen Thompson, Vanderheyden, Feavel, Keller, Delain, Knulit and Bogan.

NORLEMAN DIES

Edinburgh, Scotland.—(P)—Lord Kinross, lawyer and banker, died today at the age of 69. His son, John P. D. Balfour, succeeds him as third baron of Glaselune.

Lord Kinross had been sheriff of Dumfriesshire and Galloway since 1927 and a director of the bank of Scotland.

One Killed When Bus Skids Into Underpass

Altoona, Pa.—(P)—Driver Robert Robinson said an attempt to avoid a car that cut in ahead of him caused his large bus to skid on a slippery highway and crash into a railroad underpass, killing one of 27 passengers returning home from the New York World's fair and injuring 14 others.

Ray Kelly, 33-year-old steel company employee of Oakmont, near Pittsburgh, died several hours after the accident late yesterday from shock and undetermined injuries.

Edwin P. Fallgreen, 32, Pittsburgh, was reported in a serious condition from a left leg fracture and possible internal hurts. Others on the casualty list suffered from shock, broken bones and bruises.

TRIP TO MARS
Nine months ago, the world was given proof that many persons nowadays are ready to believe almost anything. A radio program, a kind of play on the air, told of a great invasion from Mars. Many of those who tuned in late supposed they were hearing a news flash, and in some places there was nearly a panic.

Artist's idea of "Martian invaders." (After Voter).

It is not likely that people from Mars (if there are such people) will reach the earth by rocket, or in any other way. If they do come, there seems hardly one chance in a million that they would want to make war on people of the earth. If people of Mars were smart enough to reach the earth, we may feel almost certain they would know war is a foolish thing. Turning the question around, what are the chances that people of the earth will be able to travel to Mars?

Such chances at present seem very small. An airplane could not go to Mars, since there would be no air on which it could ride during most of the distance. The talk is not about an airplane going to Mars, but about a rocket. The idea is that a rocket might shoot beyond the gravity power of the earth, then would be able to keep going by such means as setting off powder explosions.

Possibly the time will come when a rocket will reach a planet, or at least the moon, but I feel sure I shall not be aboard it! Life seems too good to me to risk it that way! The greatest chance in aiming a rocket probably would not take it to a planet. With Mars shooting through space at a speed of 16 miles could be made to turn. It would be one-third of the gravity of the earth, but it could pull a rocket toward it with great force.

The best way to go to Mars is with the help of a telescope. Our present telescopes have shown facts of interest, and telescopes of the future may tell much more. One invention or another may make it possible to obtain better views of the surface. At some distant date, we even may be able to see a crowd of people—if there are any people there. (For Science section of your A leaflet called "Famous Music Masters" may be had by sending a 3c stamped, return envelope to me in care of this paper. scrapbook.)

THE ONLY PLACE

Ashland, Ore.—(AP)—This town believes it is the only place in the world that goes "Shakespearean" every summer. During the annual festival associated with production of the bard's play, the people dress in costumes of the Elizabethan period. The idea originated five years ago with Angus Bowman, drama instructor in the local teachers' college.

FOUR BLIND DATES

amenities. A departure called for a goodbye. Lily approached Packy with the laudable intention of saying goodbye.

Elevating herself she placed her forepaws on Packy's hips. Then she gazed earnestly into Packy's eyes. It was the kindest, most regretful look in Lily's entire repertoire. But to Packy's warped vision it was as if the beast were regarding an outsize in flit, mignon gasping under a conignment of chicken livers. A distant cousin to a shriek left Miss North's lips.

"Mr. Adams!"

Tacks, who had not been making much progress on his southerly course, wheeled.

"Yes, ma'am," he said inquiringly.

"For Heaven's sake, take this thing off me. I'll make some kind of arrangement with you. Though I'll always consider you the lowest of the low."

Elation possessed Tacks. "My wants are simple," he said. "But it's imperative that you have a date with me this Saturday night. I also stipulate that you let me take you home now."

"Saturday night?" wailed Packy, pulling back her head to avoid a sortie on the part of Lily's tongue. "You know very well that I have a job."

"Fout! What's a job compared to being consumed by a ravenous dog?"

In the last stages of madness. Besides, I'll get you another job."

Packy groaned. "I call it nothing less than sheer blackmail."

"It's women like you that drive men like me to blackmail. Come on, Miss North. Think fast."

"Oh, all right. I guess I can manage. Only, please, get this dog away from me."

"Right," said Tacks with alacrity. He addressed Lily. "Down you, elephant."

Lily heard and understood. If the Adams oilcan were going to get into it, the gong had gone for the end of the fun. Reluctantly she took her paws off Packy's hips, dropped them to the footpath and stood in a what-next attitude, awaiting further foolishness.

"You see?" Tacks said. "It's easy when you know how."

Boasting and babbling Packy brushed off her skirt indignantly.

"Listen," she said, with perceptible coldness, "it isn't part of this horrible blackmail that I have to stand here while you boast."

She strode away down the path.

Canceling of Jap Pact Not Hostile Act, Writer Says

America Merely Wishes to Re-Examine Relationships in Far East

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—There is no sound reason, judging from information obtainable here, why Japan should regard the notice of abrogation of the Japanese-American treaty of 1911 as an unfriendly action.

Treaties were intended to be revised when one or the other of the parties found new circumstances requiring reconsideration. But, in this instance, notice of the termination of the treaty six months hence really means that the United States government believes there should be a re-examination of the entire question of treaty relationships in the Far East.

This re-examination has been compelled by the changed relationships as between China and Japan and as between Japan and the other powers of the world. It is not merely the incidents growing out of the hostilities in the Far East in which foreigners have become involved, but the larger question of what America's whole connection with commerce and trade in the Far East shall be in the future.

Historically, the United States has maintained that in China there should be an "open door" commercially. This doctrine was enunciated about 40 years ago by Secretary Hay of the McKinley administration, a Republican regime. In later years, the principle of the "open door" has been repeatedly affirmed by both Democratic and Republican administrations in Washington, and it has been further supplemented with the comment that the United States has never insisted upon special privileges in Central and South America, but has participated herself in an "open door" policy.

The reference to the western hemisphere situation has been occasioned by the contention of Japanese spokesmen that the United States had a Monroe doctrine and that Japan was merely attempting to set up a Monroe doctrine in the Far East. But the Monroe doctrine merely protects this hemisphere against military and naval aggression and does not in any way mean impairment of the sovereignty of the 20 republics to the south of us.

Inasmuch as Japan has seen fit to bar Americans and others from carrying on commercial relations with China at a time when there is no state of war declared by Tokio and when, from an international law standpoint, no state of blockade has been declared, the United States must needs fall back on her treaty of 1911. Since this has been repeatedly violated by Japanese instructions as to how Americans may come and go in China and elsewhere in the Far East, the United States government sees no good reason for retaining the treaty.

Hint at Embargo

Notice of abrogation of the treaty of 1911 has been accompanied by predictions here that the United States would next apply an embargo on war supplies to Japan, but this is not necessarily a sequel. The department of state has been hesitant to apply the neutrality law which permits in time of war the imposition of an export embargo. The reason was that no state of war has been declared, and while this is a technical point, it is nevertheless true that, with the existence of the Japanese-American treaty of 1911 which permits free access reciprocally by the citizens of one country to the commerce of the other, no such restriction could be ordered if consistency were to be maintained.

Today the situation has changed. Republicans and Democrats on Capitol Hill joined in supporting a resolution—which was never passed, but which had its effect—asking that the 1911 treaty be abrogated by the executive. This notice of public sentiment reflected by both major parties in congress was sufficient indication to the executive of the wishes of the senate. Now, with formal notice given, the whole question of Japanese-American relations, including the matter of an embargo, will probably be settled by the senate foreign relations committee and the department of state working in close collaboration. During the few months, it will naturally fall to Japan to declare her policies and purposes in the Far East and to indicate to what extent she feels she has the right

Madison—Appleton continued to exceed the state average in the rate of increase of employment and payrolls during the period from May to June, according to a new report of the state industrial commission released today.

Appleton employes on manufacturing payrolls in June amounted to 14 per cent more than the previous month, while the June total was 6.7 per cent above the same period for 1938.

At the same time the amount of earnings increased at a greater rate. June earnings were 3.6 per cent above the previous month, and 18.7 per cent above June of 1938.

For the state as a whole June employment was 1.1 per cent above that for May, and 6 per cent above a year ago. Payrolls were 3.1 per cent above a month ago, and 16.4 per cent above a year ago.

Weekly Earnings Rise

Weekly earnings in Appleton manufacturing establishments rose from $22.57 in May of this year to $22.92 during June. The 1938 year-round average was only $20.46.

The average work week rose from 39.7 hours in May to 39.9 hours in June, compared with only 35.1 hours last year.

Green Bay gained in employment and payrolls during the period from May to June, while Oshkosh lost in both, although not greatly.

Menasha employment increased less than 1 per cent in the period, while the amount of payrolls dropped slightly. Significantly, how-
